Enter Mr. Raskob.
Real Air Service.
A Gentle Police Dog.
A Wicked Partner.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

THE DEMOCRATS are wise in choosing John J. Raskob for national chairman, fortunate in his acceptance.

Mr. Raskob, chief of General Motors' finance department, understands organization, and, important in a national campaign, he understands money.

Mr. Raskob's selection will be misunderstood by some. They will ask whether big business, usually on the Republican side, is with the Democrats this time?

No such question is involved. Mr. Raskob, an intimate personal friend of Governor Smith, the Democratic candidate, accepts the national chairmanship as Governor Smith's friend. That's all.

Thanks to the postoffice this country is developing a genuine flying service.

At this moment American air service is established from the Isthmus of Panama to Montreal, as it has long been from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Postmaster-General New has let contracts for carrying mail by air from New York city via Albany to Montreal, and from Key West, Fla., to the Panama Canal zone.

Our air service, southbound, is 1640 miles long.

Later the Southern route will be extended to Guatemala, Salvador and farther south.

Postmaster-General New, President Coolidge, and particularly our air service development, are to be congratulated.

A police dog, "very gentle with children," suddenly changed its mind and savagely bit two little girls skipping rope. The dog will be examined for rabies.

Every police dog is about 50 per cent as dangerous as a wolf. If owners, instead of being allowed by the law "immunity for the first bite," were put in jail for six months as soon as a dog bit anybody, there would be few police dogs wandering around.

In Senator Reed of Missouri, Governor Smith will have the well-known "wicked partner."

ICEBREAKER SAVES 2 NOBILE ICE WALKERS; COLD KILLS SCIENTIST

Moscow, July 12 (INS)—Survivors of the Malmgren party of the Nobile polar expedition, who were lost amid the Northern ice floes since May 25, have been rescued by the Russian icebreaker Krassin, the ship reported by radio today.

Prof. Finn Malmgren, leader of the group of three men, was dead from illness and exposure.

The men—Malmgren and two companions—were located on a drifting ice pack off North East Land Tuesday night by Russian Aviator Chuchnovsky. After circling over the group the airman was compelled by fog to land on North East Land.

AMELIA BALKS AT MARRIAGE; PAGE SAM!

Slim Amelia Earhart, only woman ever to fly the Atlantic, at last has declared her views on love and matrimony—and they are against marriage "now or ever."

Samuel Chapman of Marblehead, reputed sweetheart of flying Amelia, was being paged today.

Despite the long-distance hand holding of pretty Anne Bruce of Brookline and Lou Gordon, one of Amelia's transatlantic companions, and the intention of that couple to marry in Chicago this month, the Boston "Lindy Girl," said in New York:

SMITH IN CAMBRIDGE GETS 809; HOOVER, 272

Cambridge, Boston's next door neighbor, stood squarely behind Gov. Al Smith against Herbert Hoover in the Boston Evening American's straw vote, by rolling up a total of 809 votes to 272 polled by the G. O. P. standard-bearer.

Harvard sq., Inman sq., Central sq. and the East Cambridge court-house polling places went solidly for Smith. Harvard sq. earlier in the day showed a strong tendency towards Hoover, but during the afternoon the Smith forces ran up a 2-to-1 vote against him.

It was at this spot that Smith had the most trouble in outvoting Hoover. Although at first it looked as though Hoover would at last steal at least one precinct in the college

Baby Barred From Death Cell of Slayer

Baby Ruth Desatnick, four-month-old daughter of Nathan Desatnick, was barred today from the death house at State prison, where her father awaits execution next week for the murder of another infant daughter.

Warden William Hendry, in denying permission for the baby to be taken into the death house, declared it was no atmosphere for an infant to be in.

The baby, present yesterday at a clemency hearing before Governor Fuller, was taken to State Prison today by its mother, Mrs. Anna Ethel Desatnick, and by the doomed man's own mother.

RASKOB SAYS SMITH WON'T PUSSYFOOT RUM

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Correspondent

New York, July 12—A brand new Democratic party, shorn of the last vestiges of the old Bryan fringe, made its bow to the country today.

In the driver's seat is Governor Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 nominee, and beside him sits as national chairman John J. Raskob, who has been not inaptly called "a second Judge Gary" as a spokesman for so-called big business.

It is a wholly new Democratic party at the top—friendly instead of hostile to big business, frankly and avowedly wet at the top, sympathetic with the plight of agriculture—and it gives promise of conducting a bold, well-organized and amply-financed campaign for the presidency.

ELUSIVE WINDS KEEP HUB COLLARS WILTED

With two deaths by lightning, the toll of the storm that failed in its promise of relief, Boston and New England faced even hotter temperatures today.

A sharp rise of six degrees from 76 to the 82 mark between 9 and 10 o'clock was followed in the next hour by another degree.

William H. McCarthy, 28, of Fields st., Malden, was the first prostration reported today. He collapsed at Revere Beach.

A humidity above normal added to the discomfort.

Failure of the winds to shift to northwest was given as the reason for continued hot weather, though some relief is promised tonight.

GENERAL MOTORS STOCK HAS 'POLITICAL' SLUMP

Wall Street tried to establish a connection between choice of John J. Raskob, General Motors chief, as Democratic chieftain and the decline in General Motors. Whatever the cause, the big automotive stock plunged lower today, selling at 186¾. It touched 198¾ for a time Tuesday. Wright Aero declined to 133¼, where it was $23 under what it brought Monday. Indian Refining preferred, which had a spectacular rise to 230 last week, found buyers scarce today as it plunged $12 to 180.

BLOODED STOCK WORTH QUARTER-MILLION IS SAVED AS BARNS BURN

North Easton, July 12—Fire leveled five buildings on the estate of Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames, society leader, today, besides destroying valuable farming machinery, with a total loss estimated by John Hogan, the superintendent, at $250,000.

Blooded stock valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars was saved through the heroism of Hogan and a score of employes.

The palatial residence on the estate was untouched by the flames. The buildings destroyed were two large cowbarns, a hayshed, a stable and a wagon shed. All were of expensive construction and filled with modern equipment.

Spontaneous combustion in the hay loft is believed to have started the disastrous fire. The flames spread rapidly and help was required from Brockton and Abington.

Mrs. Ames, who is summering at her Newport villa, was notified and said she would hasten home. Lothrop Ames, Jr., and his bride started a yachting trip only yesterday. The airplane in which he flew here with his bride a few months ago was menaced, but water played on the hangar saved it.

After conferring with her superintendent by telephone, Mrs. Ames declared, "the loss will easily reach $250,000."

2 NEARLY DIED IN ARCTIC

The commander of the Krassin had been apprised by wireless of the location of the party, but was compelled to travel slowly because of icebergs.

The members of the Malmgren party suffered the utmost agonies of body and mind. Death from starvation and exposure faced them continuously as they drifted in the desolate Arctic sea, the only sound being the grinding of the ice fields and the crash of colliding bergs.

They were so weak and their movements were so hampered that they had difficulty in getting enough exercise to keep from freezing to death. When they left the Nobile party on May 25 to seek the coast of North East Land or Foyne Island the men carried what they thought was enough concentrated food — chiefly pemmican — for 45 days. They had expected to reach land in a few days—a week at the utmost.

MALMGREN FIRST TO WEAKEN

In attempting to cross the coast line they began traversing a floe that was detached by the current and wind and carried into the open water. They had no wireless.

Although Malmgren was a strong man physically and used to the rigors of the far north, he was the first to weaken. After his death the other two were able to increase their rations somewhat. The only water they had was from melted snow and surface ice, which was not salty.

Chuchnovsky's plane was damaged in landing, the Citta di Milano radoled, but all five men aboard it were uninjured. The plane is equipped with a field radio and carried sufficient food to last 15 days. Efforts to get in touch with Chuchnovsky by radio are now being made.

OTHER FIVE DRIFTING.

Fears that the five marooned men of the Italia's crew headed by Lieut. Viglieri had been swept from their encampment by the breaking up of the ice-floe under them were allayed today following a radio from the Citta di Milano which stated that the base ship was again in touch with the men by wireless, another Exchange dispatch from Rome stated.

The marooned men's radio had been silent for more than two days before communication was re-established. They gave their present position as 80.29 north latitude, and 28.40 east longitude, indicating that they have drifted somewhat.

STARTS ON SECOND RESCUE.

Capt. Samoyolovich of the ice-breaker sent word he was proceeding as rapidly as possible to rescue the remaining members of the Nobile party marooned on an ice floe somewhere off Northeast Land or Foyne Island. This is the group of which Nobile himself was formerly a member.

Capt. Samoyolovich described the joy of Mariano and Zappi as "comparable only to that of dead men returned to life." Apparently the two survivors were too exhausted, sick and torn mentally to give all of the horrible details of their own sufferings. Both were half-frozen and nearly starved to death.

FLIER THRILLED.

Chuchnovsky had been flying at low altitude over the desolate ice fields of the Arctic sea all day Tuesday. Suddenly in the dim twilight of the Arctic night he saw a huddled group on an ice pack that might have been either human beings or polar bears.

Two of the figures evidently had been aroused by the roar of the motor which broke the Arctic stillness with a crashing sound. Chuchnovsky was thrilled to see them moving. He dropped to lower altitude and was able to make out two men weakly waving flags to attract his attention.

It was impossible to land, however, and the gathering mist was becoming too thick for safety, so the aviator had to sail off, after apprising the Krassin by radio of his thrilling discovery. Chuchnovsky had been able to make out the figure of one man prone upon the ice. He immediately suspected that this third member of the group was dead and notified the Krassin of his belief.

SMASHES THROUGH FLOES.

When Capt. Samoyolovich received the news he gave orders for full steam ahead, but had to change his course owing to the towering icebergs which were drifting in the path of the ship. The powerful steel prowed steamer, constructed to plow its way through ice fields from six to eight feet deep, plunged through the floes smashing its way forward on its mission of mercy.

The captain had the location of the floe in longitude and latitude which the airman had carefully worked out.

been filled with hay only recently.

Supt. Hogan was summoned, and he led the employes in fighting the fire with private apparatus. The blaze spread quickly, and as the local department reached the scene the employes bent their efforts toward saving the prize stock.

Fifty Guernsey cows, valued at $150,000, were led out of the barns, and later four bulls, imported from Holland and valued at $40,000 each, were saved.

"I estimate the total damage at about $250,000," Superintendent Hogan said. "The loss of five buildings will alone total $100,000 and the machinery which was of the most modern type and damaged beyond further use was worth about $150,000.

A gasoline tank on a tractor blew up with a resounding roar, but no one was injured.

At about the same time the fire was discovered by the watchman, Francis O'Neill, night policeman, saw smoke rising from the estate and called out the local department. He then raced to the telephone exchange to call help from outside.

Boy Flier Ready for 40,000-Mile Tour to Every State

Colorado Springs, Col., July 12 (AP)—Alvin S. Robbins, one of the youngest licensed fliers in the country, today announced he expected to take off here next week for Atlantic City, N. J., where he plans to start a 40,000-mile airplane tour about August 15. He hopes to visit every State in the Union and parts of Mexico and Canada.

Robbins, who is 16 years old, left high school in his home city, Collingswood, N. J., about a year ago to study aviation. His father is a director in an airplane company in Philadelphia, where he plans to end his tour.

wrapped up in science than romance."

Previously she had shut her lips tightly, if humorously, when any attempt was made to sound her out on the matter of romance and matrimony.

But Chapman, an electrical engineer until recently connected with a Boston concern, has been the "understood" man and he breakfasted with Amelia in her suite at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Boston only last Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Amy O. Earhart, mother of the girl flier, takes no stock in the reported banishing of Cupid by Amelia in New York.

At the Denison House in Tyler st., where Mrs. Earhart is now living, she said, on hearing the report:

"Oh, I imagine that there is no truth in any such statement as that. She probably was misquoted."

The idyllic romance of Lou Gordon, mechanic of the transatlantic monoplane Friendship, and pretty Anne of Brookline moves forward steadily, however, and it was announced today that they will be married on July 20 in Chicago during that city's celebration in honor of Amelia, Lou and Wilmer Stultz, the Friendship pilot.

ORANGEMEN IN TWO OUTINGS

With police on hand to quell any possible disturbance, two factions of the State grand lodge, Loyal Orange Institution, left Boston today, each headed for a different place for the annual outing.

More than 1000 men, women and children took special trains from the South Station for Lake Pearl and Bryantville.

The first group of 200 paraded from Copley-Plaza. The lake was their objective. A half-hour later their lodge brothers gathered in parade formation.

The picnic celebrates the 238th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne and is to feature the selection of "Miss Orange" tonight in the dancing pavilion at Mayflower grove.

Wending their way down Boylston st., continuing on Essex to the South Station, 780 Orangemen and their wives and children presented a colorful spectacle to spectators who leaned out of office buildings and lined the streets at the sound of the four bands.

Thomas Frestley, Everett, was Chief marshal. Speakers included Supreme Grand Secretary William G. Kirkland, Washington; Supreme Grand Mistress Mrs. Ella Adtelle, Millinocket, Me., and Rev. George Lowry, Cambridge.

At Bryantville the Boston gathering joined the delegations from the western part of the state.

The first group to leave was headed by the Royal Black Knights, of which William McCarthy was the head.

$5000 GOODS ROBBERY; TRUCK IS ABANDONED

Merchandise valued at $5000 was stolen from the freight terminal building at 28 Franklin st., Cambridge, and carted away in a truck, which was found in Lexington early today.

The building was entered by picking the lock on a sliding door in the loading area.

From what the police were able to gather, the truck was met in Lexington by confederates in another car and much of the stolen goods transferred to it from the truck and taken elsewhere.

HIT AND RUN SUSPECT HELD FOR FATAL CRASH

Henry Berman of Don st., Dorchester, was arraigned today in West Roxbury on a manslaughter charge as the alleged "hit-and-run" driver whose truck killed Mary A. Horgan in Roslindale on June 30. Berman was also charged formally with operating in a manner dangerous to the lives and safety of the public and going away from the scene of an accident. The case was continued to July 25, and Berman was held in $2500.

A vicious German police dog attacked Mail Carrier Joseph Carmody in Geneseo st., Revere, today, knocking him down and biting him in the left leg. Carmody was the 30th person bitten in Revere by dogs during the past three months. Dr. Edward F. Rowe treated the wound.

IMMORAL ENTERTAINER FINED $150 AFTER RAID

Found guilty on a charge of promoting an immoral entertainment, Edrick Nickerson of Essex st., Melrose, was fined $150 today in Roxbury Court.

Nickerson was arrested as the aftermath of a party in Longfellow Hall, Roxbury, Sunday, June 24. Police raided the place and arrested 116 alleged spectators and four entertainers, three of them women. The 116 spectators were fined $10 each. The cases of the entertainers were continued until tomorrow.

SHOTS FIRED IN CHASE OF 2 LOWELL YOUTHS

Lowell, July 12—Two police shots, fired in a chase after two alleged auto thieves sent Kearney square and the business district into an uproar today. Paris 'Divorce Mill' for Wealthy Americans Scored By Leading French Judges

CASE CALLED FLAGRANT

The former Millicent Rogers, now Senora de Peralto Ramos, won her divorce from Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten in less than ten days, according to a French judge who severely scores the "Paris mill." The Rogers heiress is mentioned as one of three cases called "most flagrant," in the present investigation by the government of France. The inquiry covers cases during two years.

SPED UP FOR FILM STAR

Mae Murray, noted star of the movies, who won her divorce from Robert Z. Leonard after a 16-day stay in France, according to a news dispatch. This case is set forth by Paris judges as an "eloquent" commentary on the ease with which rich Americans could have the marital ties dissolved by the French courts. American law firms in Paris are being criticized.

BROKE ALL RECORDS

Mrs. Eileen Kearney Allen, American society beauty, whose suit against Julian Livingston Allen smashed all records, according to Paris judges quoted as bitterly arraigning the "divorce mill." She won her divorce in six days. Dudley Field Malone is said to have been responsible for arranging this case. Mrs. Allen's petition was filed October 23, 1926, and the decree was won October 29, 1926.

U. S. STATE LAW FOR DIVORCES IN PARIS

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 12—The days of quick and easy divorce for rich American men and women in France are numbered.

In an exclusive statement to International News Service today, Atty.-Gen. Donat-Digue of France admitted that there had been "slight irregularities" in the past and that a new special court will be created to hear divorce cases instituted by foreigners.

In the future, so far as American litigants are concerned, divorces will be granted only upon the same grounds as apply in the American states from which the petitioners come. Thus, an American from Illinois, California or New York must be able to prove in the French courts that there have been legal infractions covered by written divorce laws of those American commonwealths.

"In the future all foreign divorce actions will be heard by a special court, whose judges will be especially instructed to scrutinize severely all demands made by petitioners," said Donat-Digue.

"Not only will French courts in the future require at least six months bona fide residence here previous to filing the petition, but there will be a strict investigation.

"Those divorces already granted, in spite of this negligence, remain legal unless contested by either party to the actions."

There was an indirect contributing factor to the inquiry. A national organization of women in the United States, which is making a world survey of divorce, had the State Department at Washington send a questionnaire to the embassy in Paris to obtain information. In due course the questionnaire was turned over the French Foreign Office, which, in turn, handed it to the Ministry of Justice.

The Ministry of Justice apparently received the impression that all America was aroused over the divorce situation with the result that a formal investigation was begun with a view to establishing reforms.

HOT DOG MAN IN FIGHT WITH J. P. MORGAN

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 12 (INS)—J. P. Morgan may be a czar in Wall Street, but "Grandpa" Stein, 66-year-old driver of a hot dog wagon in Glen Cove today was prepared to battle the Morgan influence to the highest court of the land.

"Grandpa," solemn-faced and wearing his Sunday suit, appeared in Nassau County Court and began his fight to remain in business. He contends officials of Glen Cove, influenced by Morgan, are trying to stop him from selling frankfurters and ice cream cones to beach crowds at Glen Cove Landing, where he has dispensed his wares for eight years.

It is this fine against which Stein, aided by a sympathetic friend, former Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles F. McCarthy, launched an appeal today before Judge Lewis J. Smith.

Before court time Stein halted his wagon at a corner and handed out some soda pop and cones to a group of children.

"Hey, Grandpa," they shouted, "don't let 'em put you out of business. We need you."

"Grandpa," whose official title is George F. Stein, is one of the best known figures in Nassau county.

Tip to One Girl in Time Saves Lives of Nine

Omaha, Neb., July 12 (AP)—Nine members of the family of Leonard L. Masek, a farmer, were saved from probable death because Masek did not want to take the life of his favorite daughter, Blanche. The story of his attempt to poison all but Blanche was told by the girl when Masek's body was found in a corn field near his home.

Masek warned Blanche not to drink coffee at breakfast, but to permit other members of the family to have their customary cup. Then he turned to leave the house, but before departing drained a cup of the brew.

The girl became suspicious, emptied the coffee, and prepared a fresh supply. Members of the family said Masek was angry with his wife and seven children because they refused to place the deed to a farm in his name.

MONTREAL BANKS DENY HOLDING PHILLIPS CASH

Montreal, Que., July 12 (AP)—Five Montreal banks against which the state of New York has obtained writs of seizure in a search for $3,000,000 believed to have been concealed by the late John M. Phillips New York sewer contractor, told a Montreal lawyer associated with the New York attorney general that their vaults held no funds under the name of Phillips or any of the other names he is believed to have used.

The writs, the lawyer said, were more or less "shots in the dark" which followed persistent reports that Phillips had deposited money in a vault here under his own or some other name.

TECH HEAD TO PROBE 'SUBS'

Washington, D. C., July 12 (AP)—Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has notified Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur that he will serve on the navy board investigating submarine safety and salvage devices.

Dr. Stratton, the fifth member of the board, takes the place of John F. Stevens, former chief engineer of the Panama Canal, who resigned.

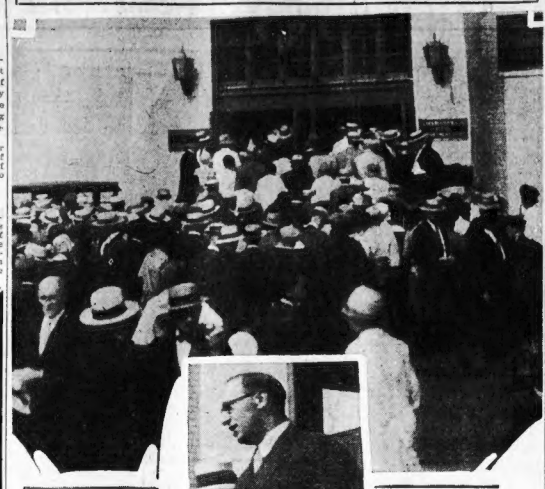
La Paz, Bolivia, July 12 (AP)—Ample skirts and split trousers worn by Indians since the days of the Spanish conquests are to be forbidden. The Government has decreed that the entire population must wear dress of European style beginning October 1.

WELCOME FOR NEW MERCHANTS



L. J. ROSENWALD

SEARS ROEBUCK STORE OPENS

With an eager throng present, exceeding the management's most optimistic expectations, the new retail store of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was opened today at Massachusetts ave. and Roseland st., the Porter sq. section of Cambridge.

Thousands were on hand for the opening and a large part of the throng had waited for more than an hour.

So large was the crowd that, to avoid congesting Porter sq., the opening exercises were held at the rear entrance, enabling the throng to occupy the big free parking space.

ROSENWALD SPEAKS.

Edward A. Counihan of Mayor Quinn's office opened the exercises by introducing Charles M. Henry, general manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stores in New England, to the assembled multitude.

The general manager spoke a few words of greeting and then introduced Lessing J. Rosenwald, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. who came on from Chicago for the opening. Mr. Rosenwald said in his address:

"It is a great privilege to be here and greet the people of this district. I must say I feel sure that this Sears, Roebuck store will become one of the most important in the Sears, Roebuck chain.

"IT IS YOUR STORE"

"About a year ago, when we opened our store in Commonwealth ave., Boston, we had no idea of the tremendous reception in store for us. That store has been a success, and we feel sure that this store will meet with an equally fine reception and success."

After outlining the policy of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and impressing upon his hearers that shoppers and purchasers have a right to expect value as well as price, Mr. Rosenwald said:

"I want you to know that we built this store for you and we want you to come here and feel that it is your store."

Walter R. Mapes, retail manager for the Boston and Cambridge stores, was the next speaker. He said:

"I wish I could tell you what Sears, Roebuck means to me. You have back of this store the world's largest buying power. We want it to be your store. We want and need your suggestions."

Mayor Quinn welcomed the store officially to the city.

When the doors were opened the throng swarmed the basement and two floors, above the street. The third floor of the cream-brick and limestone building is given over to offices and storerooms.

AT OPENING

So large was the crowd of shoppers at the opening of Sears, Roebuck retail store in Cambridge that the exercises were held in the rear to avoid congesting Porter sq. Mayor Quinn welcomed the store to the city and Vice-President L. J. Rosenwald pledged the management to the best interests of patrons.

RUNAWAY AUTO HURTS 2 TOTS

A runaway auto today injured two children on Percival st., Dorchester, knocking them down as it slid on a hill after its parking brake became loosened.

James F. Gearin, 3, of 48 Percival st., received body bruises and was taken to City Hospital. Marjorie Novak, 5, of 48 Percival st., was treated by a physician at home for leg bruises.

The automobile, which is owned by John D. Butler of Great Pond st., South Weymouth, according to the police, rolled down the street for about a block, crossed the sidewalk and was halted by a thick hedge.

BROCKTON MAN FREED OF WOMAN'S DEATH

Brockton, July 12 (AP)—A charge of murder against John Jonnas was dismissed in District Court today after Medical Examiner Wm. Fullerton had testified that Mrs. Elizabeth Jonnas died of natural causes, superinduced by alcoholism. She was found dead in her bedroom Sunday with a cut in the head and the police arrested Jonnas, who roomed at her house, on suspicion.

17TH EPIDEMIC VICTIM DEAD IN NEWTON

Victory over the Lee septic sore throat epidemic by use of scarlet fever germ was claimed today by state health authorities at the same time the death of a Newton woman was revealed to have been due to sore throat contracted at Lee, making 17 victims of the malady.

The Newton victim was Mrs. William A. Kellar of Webster st. She visited her daughter at Lee last week and died Tuesday. Investigation disclosed where she had contracted the disease. Her husband and daughter, Bertha, were also made ill.

GLOOM OVER IN LEE.

Gloom and dread were banished from Lee today, inhabitants feeling the first relief in two weeks, as a result of the rapid organization efforts of Dr. George Bigelow, State health commissioner.

Tests of milk and the cultures of patients showed that scarlet fever serum should combat the scourge successfully and it did.

Activities now center in checking up on cases in other towns, which is being done along a line suggested by Dr. Bigelow.

Tracing of all outside cases to Lee helped the authorities by proving that the origin of the disease lay in the milk supply there. While more cases are being discovered daily in surrounding communities, these for the most part are not so serious as the Lee cases.

ANOTHER MAY DIE.

Among those who, it is feared, may die, is Arthur Rogers, son of the cashier of the Lee Savings Bank, the president of which, William C. Benton, died of the malady two days ago.

Exhaustive inspection of dairies is being made by Dr. C. S. Streett and Dr. George L. Drury, veterinarians of the State board of health, palatial stock farms of millionaires and barns of poor farmers receiving equal scrutiny in the hunt for possible infected cattle or other causes. Drastic reforms through legislation may result.

GEN. EMBURY P. CLARK DEAD AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, July 12 (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Embury P. Clark, sheriff of Hampden County since 1893, and active in military affairs of the State since shortly after the Civil War, died today in a hospital, following an operation for appendicitis which he underwent Monday night. He was 83 years old.

WORLD RACERS START FROM TOKIO

Tokyo, July 12 (AP)—John Henry Mears, sailing today on the Empress of Russia with the plane which he and Charles G. D. Collyer are using in an attempt to break the around the world travel record, said they hoped to complete their adventure within 23 days. The present record is 28 days 14 hours and 36 minutes, held by Edward E. Evans and Linton Wells.

Mears, lauding Collyer's ability as a pilot in flying the plane from Cherbourg, France, to Tokyo, said the record they hoped to establish would be beaten only when faster planes are invented.

After leaving the Empress of Russia the travelers will fly from Victoria to Seattle and then to Spokane. From Spokane they intend to fly to New York in thirty hours, stopping at Chicago en route.

The flyers attended a reception given by the newspaper Asahi and visited the notable sights around the capital.

Tokio, July 11—Facing death three times but emerging safely due to the miraculous flying skill of Captain Collyer and our prayers, we arrived in Tokio at 7:55 Wednesday night, shattering the Atlantic-Pacific record with a new mark of five days and 21 hours. We are assured of the globe record if Providence accompanies us on the Empress of Russia to America and our fortune clings to us across the United States.

At Mukden, the famous wwy city of China's civil warfare where the populace is still in mourning for their late assassinated leader, Chang Tso Lin, we were up at 2 o'clock this morning after three hours' sleep and breakfasted royally with the Fitzsimmons of the Standard Oil Co. It was our first ample meal since leaving Berlin.

RIGGED UP AIR RAFT

The city is under martial law and we encountered repeated questionings en route to the air field. Only the American consul's credentials gained admittance past dozens of heavily-armed troops but one degree removed from banditry.

In preparing to hop across the Japan sea we rigged up a rubber aircraft and departed for Tokio at four o'clock. Conditions were excellent until we neared Korea, where we encountered the first of three intimate glimpses of disaster during the flight, when the oil started leaking.

Captain Collyer turned over the controls to me, which was the lesser of two evils, and crawled out on the wings in the open and soon repaired the leak. Meanwhile I was voting him the most popular man in the world.

This crisis met we next encountered fog approaching the Japan sea and flew blind for an hour and three-quarters, never glimpsing the sea, once en route to Japan.

BLAME MECHANIC FOR LEAK

A chinese mechanic was responsible for the oil leak. He forgot to screw the cap on after fueling.

As soon as the leak was repaired we sighted with relief only to start up with the discovery that a mountain loomed dead ahead. Disaster seemed certain. But Capts. Collyer, with remarkable flying, zoomed up the ship, which responded beautifully. We just cleared the peak, scraping trees!

Fog, rain and headwinds exhausted our fuel, forcing us to stop at Osaka, Japan, where we refueled in 30 minutes and hopped off for Tokio.

Darkness settled rapidly, leaving only our maps and instruments to guide the way in a strange country with no good landing fields. After hours of flying in darkness, we picked out the lights of Tokio, but could not find an air field, although we circled the city for an hour.

We faced disaster for the third time, as our gas supply was within a few minutes of exhaustion, when Collyer sighted the night beacon. We just barely made it.

MADE PERFECT LANDING

We landed perfectly, although a few minutes earlier we had become thoroughly resigned to disaster, foreseeing a forced landing, on the traditional rugged, muddy fields, which meant almost certain disaster.

We landed at Tachikawa Military Field and discovered hundreds, including army and navy officials awaiting at another field where it was impossible to land due to the lack of guiding lights.

The wings of our plane were folded up and the plane was towed to Tokohoma. We were rushed in an automobile to Tokio where an elaborate banquet was given in our honor by the Tokio Asahi, the leading newspaper. The banquet was served in true Oriental style with eleven fish courses.

The plane performed ideal throughout, bringing us safely through for a new record from the Atlantic to the Pacific of five days and 21 hours across Europe and Asia.

We have had less than ten hours sleep since departing from Cherbourg. We sail Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Empress of Russia. Collyer is already in bed realizing a well-earned repose.

(John Henry Mears and Charles B. D. Collyer are trying to break the present record by encircling the globe in less than 28 days. They send their story daily, by cable and by radio, exclusively to this newspaper.)

Giolitti's Condition Grave

Cavour, Italy, July 12 (AP)—The condition of former Premier Giovanni Giolitti, who is suffering from uremic poisoning, was very grave today. When his son Frederico arrived, the former Premier welcomed him in a touching manner, saying in the Piedmontese dialect, "I was waiting only for you."

U. S. NAVY PLANE SMASHES SIX RECORDS

Philadelphia July 12 (AP)—Six world's records were broken today in an endurance flight by the Navy XPN-12 type flying boat A-7383 carrying a load of 2000 kilograms at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. A. W. Gordon, with Chief Boatswain E. C. Richer. The plane took the air yesterday afternoon, landed at 8:32 a. m., establishing an endurance record for her type and load of 16 hours 59 minutes 51 2-5 seconds. The former record was 11 hours 7 minutes 18 seconds.

The second record broken was that for range for her type and load, covering 2130 kilometers or about 1350 miles. The former record was 1525 kilometers or 947 miles.

The third, fourth and fifth records embraced speed for distance up to 2000 kilometers, the plane averaging a speed of 83 miles an hour, breaking the record for carrying loads of 500 kilograms, 1000 kilograms and 2000 kilograms.

The sixth record broken was that for race for a load of 1000 kilograms the plane traveling 2150 kilometers, or 1247 miles.

The XPN-12 A-7383 is the second seaplane to break world' srecords at the navy yard here. The other was the PN-9 A-7284, which was recently wrecked at the Virginia Capes.

Don't Take Your Wives on Vacation, Shaw Urges

London, July 11—Separate vacations for married people were approved today in an interview by George Bernard Shaw. Shaw restricted his approval of separate vacations for husband and wife to the earlier years of marriage. He said:

"I believe in separate vacations in the earlier stages of married life. In fact, I think married people should get away from each other whenever they feel so inclined. It saves friction. Married people get stale when they see too much of each other. Married people, however, get beyond the stage when they see too much of each other. When they have lived long enough together, however, they do not want to take separate holidays."

MANVILLE MILLS GO ON 54-HOUR SCEDULE

Manville, R. I., July 12 (AP)—The Manville Mills of the Manville-Jenckes Company today went on a working schedule of 54 hours a week. The plant had been operating 48 hours a week. About 2,000 operatives are employed in the manufacture of cotton and rayon mixtures. It was explained that the necessity of getting out orders for summer goods promptly was a factor in the change.

RASKOB TO GET BIG BUSINESS FOR SMITH

in selecting Raskob to conduct his campaign was described by his friends today as his acceptance of the challenge thrown down by Dr. Hubert Work, the Republican national chairman, to make the tariff and prosperity one of the great issues of the campaign.

As head of the great General Motors Corporation, which shares with Standard Oil and the Steel Corporation the distinction of being the biggest of big businesses in America; as a close associate of the great du Pont interests as director in a dozen great business organizations, nobody could be more interested than Raskob in a protective tariff and the full dinner pail, Governor Smith's friends pointed out today. Let Raskob's nomination stand then, they said, as the Smith acceptance of the Republican challenge.

SOUTHERNER STAGGERED.

Some of the Southern and Western Democrats of the old school were still a bit groggy today from the staggering effect of seeing a rank business captain of Raskob's type and affiliation in the party saddle.

An effort was made was told today of how Governor Smith came to make the final choice of Raskob. The scene was in the Governor's suite on the 14th floor of the Biltmore Hotel. A smoke-filled room with a dozen men present. Tne hour was 3 a. m. They had been talking for hours, juggling with names and theories.

Finally, Governor Smith removed his cigar, arose, and, according to one who was present, spoke substantially as follows:

"In 1924, Mr. Coolidge, a Republican, carried this state by an overwhelming majority. I, a Democrat, carried it, too. But Mr. Coolidge carried it notwithstanding the admitted great ability and outstanding character of John W. Davis.

SMITH WAS PUZLZED.

"It puzzled me then, and it has puzzled me since.

"I have come to the conclusion that it was because business does not trust a Democratic national administration; because the Republicans for years have spread the canard of 'hard times' and business lack of faith in a national Democratic administration.

"Well, gentlemen, this year we will show business that it can have confidence in the Democratic Party. John J. Raskob of General Motors, and my friend, will be national chairman."

RASKOB QUICK TO ACT.

The new chairman was quick to follow up this line when in his speech of acceptance he said:

"No one could have higher or finer ideals with respect to the relations between government and business—big and little—than Gov. Smith. He believes in a tariff of honesty. The tariff plank in the Democratic platform is reassuring to business."

Prohibition will be an issue, and both Smith and Raskob asserted today with emphasis that it will not be ducked, evaded or sidestepped by the democracy in this campaign.

DEFINES "WET" ISSUE

"If," Raskod said, "if, as a result of careful study, Gov. Smith can evolve a plan for regulation and control of the liquor question in a way that will absolutely prevent the return of the saloon, which will eliminate bootlegging with its accompanying evils of graft, corruption and murder, and restore temperance to our country, then all fair-minded men must admit his right, if not his duty as President, to promulgate such plan, and to advocate such changes in our laws and Constitution as may be necessary for its adoption. This, again, is leadership—not pussyfooting."

As for agriculture, Governor Smith will deal extensively with that in his speech of acceptance some four weeks hence. The Democratic platform went considerably further than the Republican in meeting the demands of the agrarian spokesmen at the two conventions, and Governor Smith has asserted he "stands squarely on the platform."

All other issues are subordinate to these three—business prosperity, prohibition and agriculture.

It is upon this trio that Governor Smith has elected to stand or fall in the approaching November battle.

BAY STATE CANDIDATES TO BE QUIZZED BY WOMEN

Believing that the electorate should know the opinions of candidates on questions of vital public import, the Massachusetts League of Women Voters will undertake to find out the stand of candidates prior to the coming primaries. Candidates for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Senator, Representatives and State legislature will be quizzed and their replies given wide publicity.

Other campaign activities of the league will include one-day citizenship schools, all-party candidate meetings, distribution of literature of the league itself and of all political parties.

THIRD DIVISION VETS IN HUB FOR CONVENTION

Back to a battle setting—even to an army "chow"—as part of the program, veterans of the Third Division, A. E. F., assembled today at the Elks Hotel for their annual three-day convention.

Tomorrow the vets open a business meeting, followed by a real army "chow" at the Army Base mess hall. Ball games, described as "battles," are in store at a harbor fort in the afternoon. Regimental dinners and a monster smoker complete the evening program. A sightseeing trip and the divisional banquet will wind up the program Saturday.

DILL AGREES WITH SMITH ON POWER TRUST DRIVE

Spokane, Wash., July 12 (AP)—Announcing his candidacy for re-election, Sen. Dill, Democrat, of Washington, today declared his opposition to the position of Gov. Alfred E. Smith on prohibition, but said he agreed with the party leader's stand on water power, farm and labor questions.

Sen. Dill said that if re-elected he would do everything in his power to prevent modification of the prohibition law.

Wife, 60, Seeks Divorce

White Plains, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—Thirty years ago Clemence Smith bought a horse and rode away into the night. He never has been heard from. Now Mrs. Smith, aged 60, is seeking a divorce.

Family Car Carries Both Hoover and Smith Plates

Northampton, July 12 (AP)—To maintain peace in a family in which the wife is a Smith booster and the husband a Hoover supporter, the family car carries a Hoover plate on front and a Smith plate in the rear.

When the machine, registered in New York, passed through Northampton, the husband was asked why the plates were not for the same candidate. He indicated preservation of domestic harmony was the reason. The family was not identified.

7 SLAYERS GO TO THEIR DOOM TOMORROW

Eddyville, Ky., July 12 (AP)—Seven men in death cells at the state penitentiary here entered today upon what they expect to be their last 24 hours of life.

All have been sentenced to die for murder. Barring reprieves, a remote consideration, they will be electrocuted between midnight and 1 o'clock the morning of Friday, July 13—tomorrow.

Three are negroes. They will die last. The four white men, three of them little more than boys, will go to the chair first in a border yat to be arranged.

If court instructions are followed exactly, there will be hardly a break in the procession through the death chamber during the hour set for the executions. About eight minutes will be the time allotted for each of the condemned to enter the room, take his place in the chair and be removed.

Two of the white men, Charles Paul Mitra, 22, St. Louis, and Orlando "Red" Seymour, 21, Louisville, blamed "evil companions" today. Each was convicted of murder in connection with robberies at Louisville.

The third, Raeuse Dockery, 21, Harlan, Ky., did not deny the murder of two women and a man for which he was convicted two years ago in one of the mountain counties. "I have a mother and a baby out there," he said, "and I hate to leave. But I am ready to go."

The fourth, Milford "Red" Lawson, 25, Corbin, Ky., denied the murder for which he is to die. He pleaded for more time.

Of the three negroes two refused to talk even to the chaplain. In solitary confinement, they were reported to be in sullen mood. The other joked about the electric chair.

SHIP SET AFIRE AND ABANDONED AFTER CRASH

St. Johns, N. F., July 12 (AP)—The French barkentine La Prieuse was set on fire and abandoned and her crew was saved following a collision off St. Pierre, Miq., yesterday, with the Red Cross line steamer Nerissa. The Nerissa docked here with the captain of the French vessel and its crew of 35 men.

St. Pierre, Miq., July 12 (AP)—It was reported here today that the French barkentine Guilou, owned by Jobaur at Bordeaux, was stranded yesterday noon on the west coast of Langlade in a thick fog. The crew was reported as safe, but the vessel with its cargo of coal is presumed to be a total loss. It was bound from Sydney to St. Pierre.

MILLENIUM ARRIVES ON BOYNE DAY IN ERIN

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 12 (AP)—The Ulster border at Castlederg, Tyrone, where hostilities between North and South Ireland seemed imminent three years ago, was by coincidence yesterday the scene of a combined raid by Free State and Ulster constabulary on moonshiners preparing for today's celebration of the Battle of Boyne.

Fight was blown by the moonshiners encountered by the Free State Civic Guards, but the Ulstermen joined in and the trouble soon was quelled. The people of Castlederg, strong Orange center, were astounded to see the guards marching through the town with their prisoners, but greeted them heartily.

$12,000 PRESENTED LYON AND WARNER

San Francisco, July 12 (AP)—With the echoes of Pacific welcome still ringing in their ears and with $12,000 nestling in their pockets, Capt. Harry Lyon and Radioman James Warner, American parachutists in the Southern Cross flight to Australia, rested on their laurels today.

The welcome started when the Matson liner Maloio brought the airmen back to the United States, and ended with a banquet at which checks for $6000 each were tendered by a representative of Mayor James Rolph, Jr. The money was raised by public subscription.

Maine Phone Girl Drowned

Portland, Me., July 11 (AP)—Alice R. Murphy, 21, telephone operator here, was drowned while bathing in Crescent Lake today.

SLOW DRIVER MENACE IS HIT BY EXPERT

By FRANK A. GOODWIN
Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The road mope is not only a nuisance but is a positive menace.

When he drives along a crowded main highway at 15 or 20 miles an hour he is bound to tie up traffic, with the result that operators behind him cut in and out, taking chances they would not think of taking if the line was moving at from 25 to 30 miles an hour.

For this reason the slow driver may easily be the cause of serious accidents.

F. A. Goodwin

Don't mope on the road.

In the same class with the road mope is the truck driver who "hogs" the road. While it may not be generally known, there is a law which requires slow moving vehicles to keep to the extreme right of the road and the operators must not wilfully obstruct cars wishing to pass.

ALWAYS IN DANGER

There is one law in particular, the violation of which constantly places the lives of occupants of motor vehicles in danger. It is this: "Whenever on any way, public or private, there is not an unobstructed view of the road for at least 100 yards, the driver of every vehicle shall keep his vehicle on the right of the middle of the traveled part of the road."

This law is violated by thousands of operators and is bound, if persisted in, to result disastrously. Every time an operator passes another on a curve or near the top of a hill he may meet some other operator doing the same thing coming toward him.

This means that he may crash into the oncoming machine, or, in order to avoid a head-on collision, will be compelled to cut in on the car he is passing. Not only on curves and hills is this law violated but also on straight stretches.

ONE ACCIDENT CAUSE

Many drivers persist in attempting to pass other cars approaching within the 300 feet which the Legislature has set as a safe margin.

Hundreds of accidents of serious character happen each year because operators misjudge the distance and are forced to cut in quickly, butting with rear wheel the front of car they are passing, thus knocking the steering wheel out of control.

Many times accidents are caused by the operator of the car that is being passed speeding up when he sees another attempting to pass. This is not only dangerous practice but stamps the operator as second only to the hit-and-run driver as the meanest on the road.

A golden rule for all drivers is "Drive with reference to others as you would have them drive with reference to you."

Ten Cent Taxis Cause a Row in Washington

Washington, July 12 (AP)—Now comes the 10 cent taxi. One hundred taxicabs, advertising a dime fare, took up stands at twelve places throughout the city today prepared to compete for the overflow transportation business among the thousands of government clerks.

Two traction companies and the leading bus concern of the capital have filed heated protests against the move with the public utilities commission.

The rates will run only one hour. After 9 o'clock they will take down their 10 cent signs and resume their normal business.

PROF. MICHELSON TO GO UNDER KNIFE

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Varying reports during the past two weeks concerning the health of Prof. Albert A. Michelson were met today by the statement of his physician, Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, that the famous University of Chicago scientist is "rather ill." A bladder operation has been deemed advisable, it was stated at the Presbyterian Hospital, where the man who succeeded in measuring the speed of light has been under observation since Tuesday.

Boy Scouts Save Money and Cure Crippled Lad

Springfield, July 12 (AP)—An operation, financed by the savings of a Boy Scout troop of which he is a member, is expected to restore to perfect health Henry King of Palmer, a 13-year-old cripple. The scouts denied themselves luxuries to raise $150 for hospital expenses, and Dr. R. Nelson Hait performed the operation free. The boy at the age of three was crippled by septic sore throat.

ROSE BRIDAL AT NEWPORT, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Betty Tailer Wears Veil of Great Grandmother as She Plights Troth With Walter Gurnee Dyer, Former Yale Crew Star

NEWPORT, R. I., JULY 12—THE DYER-TAILER WEDDING WAS A ROSE bridal. Roses were everywhere. There were fragile ramblers, first cousins to the pale pink wild rose that flaunts on New England hedges. There were delicately pink bridesmaid roses, and scores of tall, luxuriant American Beauties to surround the petite and golden-haired Miss Betty Tailer as she and Walter Gurnee Dyer exchanged their nuptial promises at Honeysuckle Lodge. The lodge boasts an exquisite ballroom all rose hangings and mirrored walls. And for the wedding it was made into a rose and gold fairyland with hundreds of pink-tinted blossoms.

ROSES TWINED ABOUT PILLARS THAT MADE A BRIDAL AISLE TO THE white-satin-hung prelude that improvised an altar. Roses, hung aloft from graceful baskets, and in the pergola they reared slim stalks from silver vases. Honeysuckle Lodge is beautifully arranged to be the scene of a wedding elaborately done. The rose and gold ballrooms is flanked to one side by a wide stone pergola, and on the other, looking down over green lawns toward the sea, is a formal terrace garden filled with mimosa, larkspur, roses and lilies. Nature has been lavish in her gifts at Honeysuckle Lodge. But for the wedding some clever devices, man-made, were utilized.

AN INSPIRED DECORATOR ADDED LAVISH BEAUTY TO LAVISH BEAUTY. A clever arrangement of blue lights gave to the vista from ballroom, through the terrace garden straight out to the sea itself, a gorgeous blue, brilliant as the Mediterranean. There were exclamations of delight for the decorations, and for the chief decoration of the affair, the bride herself. In her formal white satin and spider web laces she was the girl-bride to perfection. Sentimental tradition and up-to-date maidishness were emphasized in wedding outfit.

SHE WORE PEARL WHITE SATIN. THE V neckline and the long sleeves and the enormously long train gave a note of stately beauty to even so tiny a bride as was Miss Tailer. The train swept its yards of length from altar almost down the entire ballroom. The lovely rose point veil had been worn at other weddings, the bride's mother's and her great-grandmother's. Her bouquet was of long-stemmed valley lilies in shower, and her sole ornament was the bridegroom's gift, an enormous square emerald set about with a dozen square cut diamonds.

LIKE THE WEDDING VEIL, THE PENDANT of emerald and diamonds is an heirloom, bequeathed to the bridegroom from his great-grandfather, Walter S. Gurnee. Its gleam and sparkle added the final touch of elegance to a beautiful wedding ensemble. T. Suffern Tailer, father of the bride, gave her in marriage, and she had but one attendant, a welcome variant from the usual long processional of wide-hatted, chiffon-frocked girls. Miss Carolyn Griswold, the bride's cousin, was honor maid.

IN CONTRAST TO THE BRIDE'S STUDIED SIM plicity, Miss Griswold's frock radiated Parisian sophistication in its every ruffle. It was of chiffon, a chartreuse green, dipped in the back and lifted a bit in front, and topped by a wide and drooping leghorn hat. Her bouquet was an artful blending of golden yellow tints, yellow irises, primroses and African daisies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Howell Griswold, Jr., of Baltimore, and comes into relationship with the bride through the distaff side. Mrs. Tailer was Miss Harriet Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown of the Maryland social stronghold.

YALE, 1925, IS THE BRIDEGROOM'S CLASS, AND FOR HIS Alma Mater he captained the crew in his senior year. His brother, Elisha Dyer, of New York, was best man, and the usher corps, 15 strong, included William S. Scull, 2d, of Philadelphia; Charles W. Williams and Joseph Cooper of Baltimore, Grant Oliver, Howard Clark, George E. Watson, Jr., Earl P. Yandell, Richard A. Jones, Jr., and Roland Plamedo. The bride's two brothers, Lorillard Suffern Tailer and T. Suffern Tailer, Jr., were of the staff that seated the exalted ones in their gold chairs within the mirrored ballroom.

GIFTS FOR THE DOWER OF A PRINCESS ROYAL SHOWered down on the girl-bride. A priceless collection of silver, glass, tapestries, paintings and objects d' art filled several rooms. Notable in the richness was a complete service of old Georgian silver, some 200 pieces, that will without doubt decorate formal dinners when Mr. and Mrs. Gurnee Dyer are through with their honeymoon wanderings and are established at their New York apartment, high up in a luxuriously-appointed house in Fifth avenue's upper reaches.

IN A SHOWER OF ROSE LEAVES, IN KEEPING WITH THE rose wedding motif, bride and bridegroom departed by motor for a wedding journey that eventually will take them to a rose bowered Cape Cod cottage for a time, and in late August bring them back to Newport, and the gold mashie tournament over the fine private links of the bride's father, Suffern Tailer, out on the Ocean drive. Without doubt Newport, of the year round resident colony, will be as fond of the pretty bride now that she is Mrs. Dyer, as they were of her as Miss Tailer, who only a year ago was formally presented to society.

FOR THE WEDDING AND THE RECEPTION THERE WAS A guest list overpoweringly imposing. The great and the spectacular of several cities graced the list and the occasion. Brigadier-General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gassaway Davis, 2d., Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. Henry Clews and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pitsimons, were some of the exalted set to whom wedding cards were sent.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS QUENTIN JONES, MRS. NATHANIEL THAYER, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown and her son J. Nicholas Brown, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, Mr. and Mrs. William Grosvenor, Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Wickes, Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Minot, Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fairfax Cary, Mr. and Mrs. John Magee, were others of the gilded cognomens inscribed on the glittering scroll of the invitation lists.

De Luxe Chamber Suite 195.00

Sensationally Priced at

Reduced from 288.00

With Twin Beds, 249.00

Here is a suite that embodies all the essentials of the finest furniture made. Furniture to grace the most pretentious of homes, yet offered at a price easily within the means of the average family, and of course, on terms to meet your convenience.

Walnut and mahogany veneers have been so artistically combined with a base of solid gumwood as to please the most fastidious.

Inlays and overlays are employed to lend a most artistic effect.

The design, modification of Louis XVI, is an example of modern art, fashioned along the lines of the old masters. The construction is so good that you must see to appreciate. The drawers, for example, have quartered sycamore sides and backs, with bottoms of solid mahogany. The drawer construction is of the modern dust-proof type with extra top dowels to prevent sagging.

The dresser and chest are exceptionally well built. Attention is directed to the unusually neat corners, made possible by the five-ply ends which eliminate the usual bulky corner posts and provide extra drawer room.

All in all, we proffer this suite as one of the very best we have ever offered, and recommend it as one of the best values in the country.

Beware of Oily Skin

It Causes Enlarged Pores—Makes the Face Look Dirty—Old and Ugly.

Until now, no face powder has been good for oily skin. And women with oily skin quickly get enlarged pores. While oily skin needs an astringent to close the pores, even the imported powders contain zinc stearate to make them cling to dry skins. And, any skin specialist knows this chemical should never be put on an oily face. It is dangerously laxadermic (skin-relaxing), the reverse of astringent. It relaxes the skin and opens the pores. And, too many garden corn starch which ferments in the pores causing enlarged pores, blackheads and often eruptions. No wonder millions of women have been begging for a face powder good for oily skin.

But, at last a famous cosmetician has created a guaranteed face powder to correct oily skin. He did this by replacing the dangerous skin-relaxing zinc stearate and the harmful rice starch found in other powders with a harmless beautifying astringent to reduce the pores and neutralize excess oil. And, thousands of women discovered this powder not only corrects oily skin, but it refines coarse skin and prevents fine skin getting coarse.

This new-style face powder is called La-May (Poudre L'Ame). So, if your skin is oily, let La-May correct this fault. Or, if you are getting coarse pores on your cheeks, chin and nose, let La-May refine your skin. The more you use it the more you prevent enlarged pores and the quicker you restore your complexion to youthful beauty. That's why even in Paris it is called the most perfect face powder known to science. You, too, will say it is marvelous; that it goes on smoother, looks better and stays on longer than any other. It comes in all shades at fifty-cents and one dollar from Liggett's or any dealer anywhere. The color for brunettes gives an unusually beautiful effect.

Remember, La-May is the only face powder guaranteed to correct oily skin and prevent and reduce enlarged pores. It does not cake on or flake the skin or show like makeup. Save this notice.

NORRIS BALKS AT LEADING THIRD PARTY

Washington, July 12 (AP)—Announcement was made today at the office of Senator Norris of Nebraska that he would head no third party movement. The statement was made in connection with his nomination for the presidency at Chicago last night by the Farmer-Labor party.

In the absence of Senator Norris, his secretary stated that the Senator had been approached by convention leaders in Chicago without his consent, and that he would not accept such a nomination.

Insull's Niece Has Vision of Being in Aquarium

Pittsfield, July 12 (AP)—Mrs. Granville E. Whittlesey, niece of Samuel Insull of Public Utilities fame, thought for a moment she was in an aquarium instead of her own home when, upon opening the faucet in the bathroom, two pollywogs and a worm dropped into the bathtub.

Inquiry at the board of public works brought the explanation that the water visitors probably got in the pipes when the mains were flushed.

WELLESLEY MAN HANGS HIMSELF IN CELLAR

Charles Belforto, 45, of Leary st., Wellesley, hanged himself in the cellar of his home today. He was found by his wife who awoke to find him missing from their room. Belforto had slung a rope around a beam in the cellar and had kicked a box from under his feet. According to his wife, he had been ill for a month and had returned to work only yesterday. Medical Examiner Hodgdon pronounced the death one of suicide.

NEW ERA, SAYS OBREGON TO HAMMOND

Gloucester, July 12—John Hays Hammond, world famous mining engineer, today received from Gen. Alvaro Obregon, newly elected president of Mexico, the following reply to a message of congratulation:

"I am deeply gratified by your splendid felicitations. I hope to interpret for Mexico the desire that henceforth its frontiers are open to all men of enterprise who, inspired by the noble purpose of mutual cooperation, wish to come here and work with us to develop our great natural resources.

"Affectionately, Obregon."

Hammond characterized Gen. Obregon's telegram as the "most reassuring bit of news, pointing upward a continuance of friendly relations between Mexico and the United States and a greater economic development of the republic to the south."

The American engineer has been interested since 1882 in the development of mines, hydro-electric power and other allied utilities in Mexico and has handled the investment of immense wealth for American and European clients.

"This will give American capital great opportunities for profitable investment, if carried on in the spirit indicated by Gen. Obregon's telegram," he said.

"It will stabilize the political conditions there by affording profitable employment to a large part of the working people of Mexico, which is a country with great potential wealth but without the capital at home to develop it.

"An entirely new spirit prevails there and that spirit will be developed under the administration of Gen. Obregon. There is no reason why the same feeling of confidence cannot exist between the United States and Mexico as between Canada and the United States."

Ambassador Dwight Morrow has undoubtedly contributed greatly to the development of cordial relations."

REV. JAMES H. O'NEIL'S FUNERAL SATURDAY

The funeral of Rev. James H. O'Neil for the last 22 years pastor of Sacred Heart Church, East Boston, will take place from the church Saturday morning. Solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 10 o'clock. Father O'Neil died at his summer home on Salisbury Beach following an illness of one week. He was a native of Amesbury. His body was taken to the church rectory in Brooks st., East Boston, this afternoon. At 8 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the body will be taken to the church and will lie in state there until after the funeral services. Parishioners of the church will act as a guard of honor.

CAMBRIDGE FOR AL, 809-272

city, late returns showed Smith running strong.

The total vote of Cambridge was 1081. Central sq. was the high spot for the day with a vote of 498. This was divided with 258 for Smith and 110 for Hoover. Sixty-one voters who stated that they voted for Coolidge in 1924 switched and cast their ballots for Smith. Hoover took four votes from Davis.

MAINTAINS LEAD

Inman sq., Harvard sq. and the East Cambridge courthouse polling-places gave Smith 611 votes, against 162 for Hoover. The turnover at the three precincts totalled 118 for Smith from Coolidge and 19 for Hoover from Davis.

In 1924 the voters registered 333 for Coolidge and 209 for Davis in the four precincts covered by the American.

At two of the polling-places in Boston proper, Boston Common and State st., in the financial district, showed that Smith was still maintaining his first lead over Hoover. During the day 1377 votes were cast, 1034 for Smith and 343 for Hoover.

In Boston Common, 834 votes were recorded, Smith receiving 559 and Hoover 195. The voters registered the fact that in 1924 they gave Coolidge 297, and Davis 148 votes. Smith collected 167 votes from Coolidge, and Hoover took 5 from the Davis forces.

State st. voted 543 ballots Smith getting the high mark of 395, as against 148 for Hoover. These same voters stated that in 1924 they gave Coolidge 169 and Davis 78. The switch here was, Coolidge to Smith, 92, and from Davis to Hoover, 12. The combined vote of Cambridge and Boston was totaled as 2458.

SMITH GAINS

The vote of Coolidge in Boston was 92,076; Davis 78,822. In the State Coolidge is recorded as getting 703,476 against Davis's 230,317. There seems to be no question but that there is a decided shift from Coolidge to Smith, according to those who have voted in the American's straw vote.

Tomorrow, the presidential straw vote caravan makes its way into Revere and Chelsea. In the former city, the voting-place will be located at Revere City Hall on the front lawn, and also at Orr sq., in front of the building occupied by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. In Chelsea the buses and the girl operators will be found in Chelsea sq. and at Bellingham station.

Watch for the girl with the ballot box and the American daily for results of the presidential straw vote being conducted by the Hearst papers throughout the country.

CHICAGO HOTEL HAS BIG BILL AGAINST LOWENSTEIN

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Alfred Lowenstein, the Belgian millionaire believed drowned in a fall from his plane into the English channel, sent so many cables and telegrams while here recently that it is only now that his hotel has been able to prepare a bill. During his Chicago stop, Capt. Lowenstein and his party occupied an entire floor at the Ambassador Hotel. So voluminous were the messages dispatched by wire that the hotel was unable to have an accurate total when he departed. The claim was forwarded to the executors.

EXECUTE 48, IN CHINA, AS REDS

Shanghai, China, July 12 (AP)—Of 107 Reds arrested at Canton since July 9, 48 have been executed and a similar fate for the others is expected.

Ninety student agitators arrested at Shekiung, 40 miles from Canton, have been brought to Canton for trial. There are 17 girls among them and the execution of most of the students, perhaps all, is considered likely.

REVERE DROWNING VICTIM IDENTIFIED BY NEPHEWS

A man drowned at Revere was identified today as Charles Doherty, 53, single, of Plymouth st., Cambridge, identification being made by his nephew, Michael L. Cannon of Lexington ave., Cambridge. Doherty was a teamster and went swimming on his day off.

A body found in the Charles River basin remained unidentified today. It was scantily clad in unmarked clothing.

COSTE PLANS FLIGHT PARIS TO N. Y. THIS MONTH

Paris, July 12 (AP)—Le Matin said today that Diedonne Coste, who recently completed a flight to South America and through the United States, intends to attempt a Paris to New York flight between July 22 and 25 if the weather is favorable. Coste will start at 4:30 a. m., thus getting 16 hours of daylight. He calculated that he would need 42 hours to cover the course which will probably be by way of the Azores.

Ford Swaps New Generators for "Antiques"

New Bedford, July 12 (INS)—Trading new machines for old ones, Henry Ford today acquired four generators from the Grinnell mill here through his personal representative, Ralph Symont. The generators, reputed to be the oldest in any cotton mill in the United States, will be added to the Ford collection of antiques

'COUNT' DE CLEMENCY IS STRICKEN IN PRISON

"Count" Philippe de Clemency, sentenced to State Prison as a common and notorious thief two years ago, was transferred to Bridgewater today.

The "Count" is known in New York and Boston for his activities over a period of several years during which he was wined and dined by society and officialdom.

An illness caused his removal from the underwear department at the prison to the infirmary at Bridgewater, officials announced.

SAY LIGHTNING SENT PLANE ON FATAL PLUNGE

Pottsville, Pa., July 12 (AP)—A bolt of lightning today was believed to have caused the fatal plunge of an airplane, in which Morris M. Titterington, inventor of the earth inductor compass, and Mrs. Bernice Gamble Andrews, movie actress, met death.

This theory was advanced by Charles Gilbert, on whose farm the plane crashed from a height of 1000 feet. He was the only witness to the accident. The plane had taken off from Curtiss Field, N. Y.

Titterington, 35 years old, was an experienced aviator and vice-president of the Pioneer Instrument Company of Brooklyn, N. Y. His earth inductor compass was used by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight to Paris and since then by other long-distance fliers.

Mrs. Andrews was known as "Patricia Perry" in moving pictures, in which she played extra parts in comedies. She was 23 years old and was divorced two years ago from Fred Andrews. She is survived by a son, Fred Andrews, Jr.

In Titterington's pocket were found two insurance policies for $5000 each, in which Mrs. Andrews had been named as the beneficiary.

At Curtis Field pilots said they had warned Titterington against a take-off, due to unfavorable weather conditions, and he at first had decided to postpone the flight.

NATIONALIST MINISTRY IN CHINA RECOGNIZED

Shanghai, July 12 (AP)—Provincial delegates to the Nationalist Government Financial Conference have recognized the authority of the Nationalist Finance Ministry. They promised to remit their revenues without fail to Nanking.

This was regarded today as a constructive step by the Nationalists in their announced intention of giving China an honest and efficient government.

The conference also decided upon a new schedule of Texes, which included new levies on imported commodities and exempted native products to develop home industries.

AIRPORT MANAGER IS BACK FROM VACATION

After a week's absence from his duties as operations manager for the Boston Airport Corp., B. F. Billings landed at the Boston Airport from Moncton, N. B. Billings flew up there last week, and suffered a slight accident when his plane struck a soft spot in a field when he was attempting a landing. The plane rolled over on its back, damaging the propeller and rudder. Parts were immediately shipped up to him, and repairs were made.

PICKET LINES SHIFTED AT NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, July 12 (AP)—Strike activities this morning shifted from the Kilburn Mill, where all night picketing was carried on Tuesday night and until 11 p. m. Wednesday, to the Sharp plant, where 200 pickets marched before 150 spectators.

Forty-two persons, of whom 10 were believed to be operatives, were reported by Secretary William E. G. Batty of the Textile Council as having entered the building.

At 7:30 picket lines at other mills in the vicinity began to march towards the Sharp plant with the avowed intention of concentrating there today.

Elsewhere the city was quiet. Picket lines and crowds of spectators were small, and the number of operatives going to work remained practically unchanged.

STABBED MAN HELD AFTER AUTO CRASH

Arresting Vito Mistregga, 22 of Charter st., Boston, after a chase through Chelsea following an auto crash today, police discovered that the youth had been stabbed three times in the back.

He was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital and then to police headquarters, where Patrolmen Linn and Kennedy, who arrested him, charged him with drunkenness, driving under the influence of liquor and driving so as to endanger the public. Mistregga refused to tell where he received the wounds. The auto crash in which his car figured occurred at Broadway and Fifth st., and the chase was through Bellingham sq. to Chelsea sq.

MacVEAGH WOULD GIVE JAPS NOMINAL QUOTA

San Francisco, July 12 (AP)—Charles MacVeagh, United States ambassador to Japan, who arrived here from Seattle en route to Santa Barbara, said he believed granting the Japanese a nominal immigration quota in the United States would soothe their resentment over the exclusion act. He said the result would be obtained even if only 50 or 100 were allowed to enter the United States annually. MacVeagh will go to Washington after spending a few days in the South.

BYNG VOTED CONFIDENCE BY BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London, July 12 (AP)—Parliament has vindicated the Home Office in its appointment of Lord Byng of Vimy as commissioner of Metropolitan police in an effort to restore confidence in the police force. A labor motion of disapproval was defeated 231 to 166. The Laborites claimed the appointment might tend to militarize the force. This was denied by Sir William Joynson-Hicks Home Secretary.

Does Lily Finally Marry Town's Richest Man?

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only child of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS of the Back Bay. Lily has been reared to be thoroughly useless, and her highest ambition is realized when she becomes engaged to STALEY DRUMMOND, a wealthy bachelor much older than herself.

Lily starts out to ask SUE CAIN to be her maid-of-honor. Lily sees a handsome, blue-eyed man looking at her. He is wearing a driver's uniform and standing beside a taxicab. She starts away, then turns, and goes slowly back to him. She gets in the cab and tells him to drive her home. As Lily gets out of the cab she takes the card with his name, "Pat France," and his photograph upon it. That night, when Staley and she are sitting before the fire, her mother says that a taxidriver is waiting to see her.

It is Pat France, and she tells Staley a lie about having forgotten to pay her cab fare. But he follows her and hears Pat France tell her he wants the identification card. She denies she has it, and he goes.

Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement just as Lily's made up her mind to tell Staley that she doesn't want to marry him. Lily finds Pat in his cab talking to a small, plain girl, who leaves him when Lily comes up. She finds a newspaper in the cab with her picture, that has been in the society news that morning, torn out of it.

One day Staley passes Lily and Pat in the road. Lily leaves the cab without paying her fare, and rushes to Staley's car. Pat comes driving up alongside for his money, and when he's gone Staley asks her to tell him how friendly she is with Pat. She tells a lie and says she isn't friendly with him at all. But in that moment she decides to forget him for good.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER IX

NO woman ever tried to make herself care for a man more than Lily tried to make herself care for Staley Drummond during the first few days of that warm and balmy May.

A hundred times a day she told herself that she was the luckiest girl in town to be getting him and that she was perfectly happy.

She wore his flowers and ate his chocolates, and read the books that he brought her.

On the first Sunday in the month she went to his home at Chestnut Hill with her mother and father, to have dinner.

Staley's house was a very beautiful house, with moss-green carpets and very old Italian furniture and very wonderful old silver and paintings in it. There was a little conservatory at the southern end of it, and the big, luxurious rooms were filled with flowers—pale-pink and yellow roses and carnations that sent a spicy, sweet fragrance into the air.

The table was a long narrow one, covered with a satiny yellow cloth, and the water glasses and salad plates were clear yellow glass. So were the roses in the center, and so were the little ash trays that were set on the table with the coffee.

"What fun it would be to live in his house with someone you were wild about," thought Lily, and then reminded herself that there couldn't be a better pal than Staley who was always cheerful and entertaining—who was the best sport in the world.

"What fun it's going to be to live in his house, Staley," she said, without the flicker of an eyelash. "It's out the most beautiful place I've ever seen. Only—I'd like to furnish part of it myself. I wish you had two or three spare rooms for me to do."

Staley laughed. "I'll clear out a couple of them for you," he said. "if you like."

"He means it, too," Mrs. Lexington said in her forceful, convincing way as they rode home that night. "There's nothing in the world too good for you, as far as Staley goes. And you're a very, very fortunate girl, Lily Lexington. I hope you know your luck."

"I do," answered Lily. She felt soothed and contented tonight, with the memory of the beautiful quiet house still in her mind. Why, just to live in a place like that would be a joy. And the parties she could give in it—the clothes she would have!

"I'd love to go to Europe on my honeymoon," she thought dreamily "I'll make Staley take me." She decided that in an instant.

"Yes, you're very lucky, Baby," her father echoed in his deep, slow voice.

And the next morning when Sue Cain came to the house she had the same chorus to sing.

She was one of those early birds who actually love to get up at the peep of dawn to go for a horseback ride or a long hike in short skirts and high boots. She came breezing in at half past nine to talk about her dress for the wedding. It was all settled that she was to be maid of honor.

"Hello, Sleepytime Girl!" she sang out, banging the door shut and plumping herself down on the bed. "If I spent the hours in bed that you do I'd have four double chins and a couple of hips. How you keep thin is a mystery to me—you're the tiniest thing under the sun"

Lily waved her hand over her breakfast tray. There was nothing on it but a glass of unsweetened grapefruit juice and a cup of coffee.

"That's how I do it. I've been hungry every day for a year," she yawned.

Sue gazed at her in admiration. "I never saw anything like you. She declared. "You never stir a finger to do anything, but everything you want comes to you—everything from breakfast trays to Staley Drummond. You lucky thing, you!"

She opened a fashion magazine she had brought with her and turned its pages to the picture of the dress she wanted to wear as Lily's maid of honor. A slim-waisted, full-skirted dress all adjutter with little ruffles.

"If your decorations are going to be white and yellow, why can't you have this made up in yellow with a picture hat of satin to match?" asked Sue. "And what are the bridesmaids going to wear?"

"I haven't even picked out my

"Our Gang" Movie Contest Rules for Children

Children in New England from three to twelve years may compete.

Each contestant may send ordinary photograph or snapshot; or one in costume.

Each child may compete for only one character.

All contestants must have consent of parents.

All children may enter except children of employes of this newspaper, of Loews Orpheum Theater or printers of same.

Write PLAINLY on the back of each picture, full name, age, address of child and name of "Our Gang" player he looks like.

No picture will be returned. They will be held in Boston Evening American office for two weeks after contest ends, when they may be claimed by owners.

Address pictures to "Our Gang" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, No. 8 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

BLACK AND TAN NIGHT CLUBS FACE 'WAR'

New York, July 12 (INS)—Harlem's black-and-tan cabaret belt was the new theater of war today in the "Committee of Fourteen's" drive against commercialized vice.

There, four miles north of the Broadway battleground, George F. Worthington massed his army of investigators for an intensive campaign.

Immorality runs riot in Harlem, Worthington declared, and one of the knottiest problems awaiting the cleanup squads is the intermingling of races in the smoke-filled, dimly-lighted back rooms of the carefully-hidden speakeasies.

Worthington, the secretary and moving spirit of the Committee of Fourteen, denied indignantly today that he had apologized to Molly O'Doherty, actress and night club hostess, for accusations hurled in the annual report of his organization.

Miss O'Doherty, he declared, was seeking publicity rather than apologies when she stormed his office. He never had seen her before, he said. Had nothing against her in particular and told her so. That, he insisted, was the extent of his "apology."

Night club habitues and owners and patrons of the bright light district awaited anxiously the expected reply of Police Commissioner Warren to the Committee of Fourteen's charges that the city is infested with vice.

Ex-Mayor Isaac Poor Dead

Haverhill, July 12 (AP)—Isaac Poor, former mayor and for 10 years coalman of the water board, died today. He was a trustee of the Haverhill Savings bank.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK
BOSTON, THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1928

SECOND SECTION

CAPT. KING MAKES S. BOSTON 'BONE DRY'

DOUBLES OF 'OUR GANG' PILE IN

Mothers, what would you do with $1200 in cash if your child won first prize of that amount, in the Boston Evening American's "Our Gang" movie resemblance contest?

Would you use it to advance the education of the child, or would you spend it for some other purpose?

Regardless of what you would spend it for, don't you think it would be a wonderful thing for your child to win the award and go to California for three months with you and your husband and act in "Our Gang" comedies during that space of time?

Don't forget that not only will the round-trip expenses of the child be paid if he or she wins first prize, but also those of the parents. Some vacation, eh?

HUNDREDS ENTER

Hundreds of entries are reaching the Boston Evening American daily this being one of the most popular contests ever sponsored by this newspaper. If you haven't sent your child's picture yet, do so NOW Don't wait. When the time limit expires, no more entries will be considered.

Does your kiddie look like "Wheezer"? If not, maybe he resembles "Fat Boy." If your child doesn't resemble either of those youngsters, perhaps it's a ringer for "Jean Darling," "Mary Ann," "Farina" or "Freckles."

What do the neighbors and relatives say? What do you think?

The semifinals will take pace at Loew's Orpheum theatre, on dates to be announced in the Boston Evening American.

On one evening all the children entered who think they resemble "Freckles" will appear at the theatre for the judges to select one. On another evening all who look like "Fat Boy" will be present for the same purpose.

Six children will be chosen—one resembling each of the leading children in "Our Gang." Then, with the assistance of hundreds of others entered, a local "Our Gang" movie will be made in Boston and shown at the Orpheum. The six children picked by the judges will appear in the finals which will be judged by Hal Roach, producer of "Our Gang" comedies.

MOTHERS WRITE

Many interesting facts about children entered in the contest are contained in their own letters accompanying pictures, or in the letters of their parents. Mrs. A. Miller of Barnes st., Roxbury, wrote.

"I am sending in a picture of my little daughter, Evelyn, who looks very much like 'Jean Darling' on the screen, and my friends have often remarked how much alike my Evelyn and Jean looked. I hope the judges will think so, too."

Mrs. O. J. Beaudry of Plymouth thinks the same way about her 11-year-old daughter, "Buddie." Of her she writes:

"She is blonde, can ride a horse, swim, dance (toe and acrobatic), was captain of her dodge ball team and is an all round sport. We think she looks like 'Jean Darling.'"

Mrs. Chris Larsen of Kent st., Brookline, writes.

We are glad to send a few snaps of our one and only, as an entry in the contest. It has always been a great pleasure to enter or witness the different contests sponsored by the Boston Evening American. It is a treat for mothers to hope for their boys and girls to win. We think our boy, Allen, has roguuish eyes, and a winning smile.

CALLS HIM "RASCAL"

Mrs. May Brighton of Arnold Circle, Cambridge, writes:

I would like to enter my three-year-old son, Jackie, in your "Our

MERELY MARY ANNE, EH?

BOTH REAL, BUT ONLY ONE "REEL"

Eleanor Ruth Goldman, four, of 16 Halborn st., Mattapan, who is really very cute, thinks she resembles Mary Anne Jackson of "Our Gang." Compare them and see what you think about it. Meanwhile, a host of children rushes to enter the great movie contest.

HUB LIVING COST LESS THAN N.Y.

It costs less for an industrial worker in Boston to support himself, wife and two children than in New York or Philadelphia, but more than in Cleveland, according to a report by the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Here are the figures for one year:
New York, $1652.84.
Philadelphia, $1628.35.
Boston, $1627.33.
Cleveland, $1551.87.

The commission says the lower cost in Cleveland is due to cheaper fuel. Citing another table, as of December, 1927, Boston's dollar, compared with pre-war value, is given at 49.50; Philadelphia, 78.30; Cleveland, 78 and New York 79.10 cents.

"The factual foundation established by these reports," says the commission, "should prevent circulation of exaggerated and unfounded statements concerning the cost of living in Massachusetts compared with other similar industrial centers and prove of especial interest to manufacturers."

Prodigal Five-Cent Hot Dog Returns, Vendors War

Nantasket society jottings—the frecent hot dog is back.

For as the long-absent brother has already been begun by the only rich ten-centers but the ordinary native has a long pedigree and is going big with the summer throngs.

Pre-cent red hots were brought back to Nantasket by Rubin Alderman of Boston and efforts of other vendors to buy him out or drive him away have failed.

Alderman declares his supply of rolls, piccadilli, tonic and ice cream cones was cut off, due to his competitors, but he found ways and means of getting the necessary adjuncts to his kennel and is still doing business.

CROSSING MAN HURT BY TRAIN

In a second accident in two days in the Hingham branch of the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad, Patrick Farren, 61, crossing tender at Eddyville, Hingham, was thrown 20 feet today suffering a broken hand, cut and bruises.

Farren stepped out to hold his warning "STOP" sign on the approach of a Hingham-to-Cohasset local when another local bound to Hingham bore down on him. Unconscious, he was taken to the home of Michael Daly where Dr. John C. Sweeney treated the injuries.

CLOSES UP 100 RUM PLACES

South Boston is bone dry today following a "sealed envelope campaign" of Capt. Martin H. King, new skipper of the Athens st. station.

More than 100 places, known to have plied an illicit trade, have closed their doors, and customers weren't even "received" as they showed up to the doors this morning.

Capt. King made it known in no uncertain terms last Friday, when he took command, that patrolmen need not confer with immediate superiors in reporting "joints" on their routes. At the same time he organized a new liquor squad.

"Place the address in a sealed envelope and I'll do the rest," was the ultimatum. Almost immediately a number of small stores had a falling off in "business."

Capt. King conferred with Commissioner Wilson today, but refused to enlarge on the cleanup in his district.

Real estate values are growing steadily in Boston. If you ever intend to own your home, buy it now. See the home bargains offered today in the Classified Ads.

3 MEN, WOMAN, ARE HELD IN ROBBERY

Three men and a woman were held for the grand jury by Judge Read in Municipal Court today on charges of conspiracy preferred by Fred Walker of Peabody and William Sullivan of Salem.

The accused are Edward Victor, Frank Jacuson and Oscar Ford all of the South End, who were held in $2000 each and Estelle Whitney, held in $1000.

Walker and Sullivan testified they motored to the South End where they met the three men who escorted them to a house in Rutland. Walker said he gave Ford $5 with which to purchase liquor.

When Walker accidentally dropped a $10 bill he said, the woman picked him to the wet while the others and Ford, who had returned, tore his trousers from him. Realizing his money, they fled. The victims reported to Sergt. Quinlan of Dedham st. station, who captured the quartet. All pleaded not guilty.

'C. O. D.' LIQUOR MAN GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Robert D. Smith, 40, of Fuller st., Everett, was fined $200 and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Judge E. D. Thain in Malden District Court today after he had been found guilty of the case was a sign reading, "Poultry keeping and exposing liquor. He appealed. Among the exhibits in it, Smith said it was "just a joke."

RIOT CHARGES IN BROOKFIELD 'WAR' DROPPED

East Brookfield, July 12 (AP)—Charges brought by state police against six residents of West Brookfield, including two town officials, following the near riot there on July 4 when townspeople attacked 18 troopers, were nolle prossed today by Judge Arthur F. Butterworth in district court.

Announcement that the cases would not go to trial was made after a conference between Dist. Atty. Charles R. Rugg, Judge Butterworth and counsel for the townspeople and the state police.

The defendants were Joseph W. Clark, chairman of the selectmen, George W. Boothby, a policeman; Lockhart Olmstead, Paul Hazen, Lewis and Herbert Beehan of Springfield. They did not appear in court, but minded outside the building with the crowd of 600 or more.

SAVE BOY SEIZED WITH CRAMPS AS HE SWIMS

Seized by cramps, Joseph Estano, 12, of West 7th st., South Boston, nearly lost his life today while bathing near Columbia Beach bathhouse, South Boston. The boy was rescued by Life Guard Thomas Kelley after several dives. Kelley and Patrolman John Feeney revived the unconscious boy.

ITALIAN SHAFT STIRS IRE OF AUSTRIANS

Vienna, July 12 (AP)—Good relations between Austria and Italy, which only recently were re-established today appeared again strained by reports of indignation throughout Austria over what is regarded as an offensive inscription on an Italian war monument at Bolzano.

This monument, to be unveiled today by King Victor Emmanuel, in commemoration of the Austrian defeat of 1918, was reported in the Austrian press to contain the following:

"Here are the frontiers of the Fatherland. From this point we have offered the barbarian language, laws and arts."

One word, however, is understood to have been changed, namely "Barbarian" into "foreigner."

It is declared in Vienna that the Italian minister of education, Signor Fedele, resigned because Premier Mussolini desired to alter the original inscription.

SAILS DAILY TO PLYMOUTH

With the announcement from the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company's manager, Frederic L. Lane, of daily trips to Plymouth, with the exceptions of Mondays only, an opportunity is afforded vacationists and others of making an interesting and colorful trip via Boston harbor to this landing place of the Pilgrims.

This delightful trip is three hours each way, with a two-hour stopover at Plymouth, which gives passengers ample time to leave the boat, view all the spots of historic and romantic interest and enjoy a shore dinner if they so desire, before boarding the steamer to return to Boston.

Among the interesting places with which this town abounds and which are interesting to visit are Plymouth Rock, but a few steps from the boat's landing—Forefather's Monument—Pilgrim hall, in which are many historical relics, articles belonging to Myles Standish, Governor Carver and other men of the early Plymouth settlement.

HOUSE OF DAVID ROW IS HALTED BY POLICE

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 12 (AP)—Possibility of State intervention in the dispute between factions warring for control of the House of David colony here presented itself today after rival groups, headed by Mary Purnell and H. T. Dewhirst, engaged in a near riot yesterday.

Some 60 of the colonists were involved in the fighting, according to local authorities, who were called to quell the disturbance. The trouble, officials said, arose over seizure of 14 crates of cherries by followers of Mary Purnell in an orchard managed by Ray Hornbeck, who is identified with the Dewhirst faction.

AGED MELROSE LAWYER DIES IN HOSPITAL

Atty. A. Selwyn Lynde, 81, oldest lawyer in Melrose, and one of the wealthiest residents of that city, died today at the Melrose Hospital, following a lengthy illness.

He was a native of Stoneham, but had made his home in Melrose since childhood. For more than 70 years he made his home at 49 Lake ave., Melrose. He never practiced. Atty. Lynde was one of the oldest living graduates of Andover Academy and was a member of the Boston City Club.

DECKS CROWDED WITH AMERICA'S HOPES

The S S. President Roosevelt is shown leaving New York for Amsterdam with the United States Olympic team aboard. About a dozen local stars are included in the passenger list, the more famous of whom are shown on right and left. Hahn is America's greatest middle-distance runner, and is expected to score victories in both the 800-metres and 1500-metres runs, while Lermond will compete in the 5000-metres event. The quartet of young women belongs to the Boston Swimming Association and will compete in track and field events. —International Newsreel Photos

'REST' IS FIRST ORDER TO OLYMPIC ATHLETES

Aboard S. S. President Roosevelt, via Radio, July 12 (INS)—Three stowaways, bent upon accompanying the United States athletic team to the Olympic games in Amsterdam, were found on board today. Two claimed to be from Los Angeles, the third from San Francisco.

Aboard S. S. President Roosevelt, July 12 (AP)—A great calm has settled over the argosy that is bearing America's Olympic teams to Amsterdam.

After the noise and excitement of sailing, and, for many, the thrill of their first time on an ocean liner, the 268 athletes who hope to bring to America many of the Olympic laurel wreaths have dropped peacefully into shipboard routine and have begun to obey the first order of their coaches and trainers—to rest.

Relaxation is the principal prescription for the first few days. Many of the track and field stars who competed in the final tryouts under the broiling sun at Cambridge are underweight as a result. On this list are all four men who will compete in the decathlon.

An aggregate of 50 pounds was lost by the all around performers in their gruelling two-day test and Head Coach Lawson Robertson has issued orders for them to take things easy until they regain the lost weight.

Robertson plans to start exercising most of his track squad tomorrow, but the workouts will be stationary. Although a linoleum running track has been laid around one of the decks, running for the most part will be taboo. There is too much danger of pulled tendons and other injuries if the men are allowed to run on such unsteady footing, Coach Robertson believes, and he does not intend to take any chances.

Another coach who has put rest first on the program is Ky Ebright, coach of the California crew, the American entry in the eight oared rowing event.

The Golden Bears began to prepare for action almost as soon as the President Roosevelt steamed out of New York harbor, getting their rowing machines ready for daily workouts, but they will not begin to pull on the make-believe sweeps for another day or two.

"Jole Ray, once America's best miler and now the leader among the marathon runners, also agrees with the coaches. "I'm in the best shape of my career," Jole said. "I ran 18 miles before we left and I won't need any more until we reach Amsterdam. But I'd like to put on the gloves if some good banter wants a workout."

Babe Hot After Record, Hits No. 33

New York, July 12 (INS)—Fourteen games, 15 days and four home runs saved of his last year's record, Babe Ruth looked forward confidently today to hitting 70 homers this season. He got No. 33 against Detroit yesterday.

EARL SANDE GRANTED RIDING LICENSE

New York, July 12—Earl Sande, prominent local rider, has been granted a temporary license to ride at the current Lincoln Fields meeting.

The same applies to Pete Coyne. These were issued through the Illinois turf stewards.

Bloomer Girls Play

The Jamaica A. A. baseball team will clash with the American Bloomer Girls on the John W. Murphy playgrounds, Carolina ave., Jamaica Plain, on tomorrow night.

Why Not Make the Hawk's Nest One of the Holes?

Wildwood, N. J., July 13 (INS)—The board of governors of the Wildwood Golf Club will vote today on the momentous question of whether a fish-hawk's nest should be removed from a tree on the ninth fairway.

One member of the board, William Hunt, will vote in the affirmative. He smacked a sparkling drive off the ninth tee yesterday, but was unable to locate the ball until he noticed a commotion in the hawk's nest. Upon investigation, Hunt's ball and six others were found in the nest of the greedy bird.

COLLEGE NET STARS TO PLAY AT LONGWOOD

Definite assurance has been received from Providence, where the Rhode Island state singles are in progress, that Arnold Jones, ex-Yale captain, and William Ingraham, ex-Harvard captain, will participate in the 26th annual Longwood Bowl Tennis Tournament that begins next Monday, on the new sheafs courts.

Jones and Ingraham will play in doubles defending the honors they won in the Longwood tournament last year. Jones is not playing in the singles due to the fact that a change in his business has caused him to find less time to devote to the game.

Jones and Ingraham have been playing tennis together for two years, or since they went across together to England on a combined Harvard-Yale tennis team and defeated an Oxford-Cambridge outfit.

They rank No. 1 in the New England section, and Jones, in singles, also ranks as a leading New England player.

Also, the champion of Japan, who is also playing at Providence this week, moves to Boston next Monday to play for the Longwood bowl. He will be paired with Ben Gorchakoff of Occidental College, runner-up for the national intercollegiate tennis championship.

These Boys Will Soon Be Too Old to Fight at All

New York, July 12 (AP)—The incubus of rainy weather still is riding heavily on the back of Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy.

A sudden shower forced the fourth postponement of the battle for the junior lightweight championship between Tod Morgan of Seattle and Cannonball Eddie Martin, New York challenger.

Weather permitting, Fugazy will stage the affair at Ebbets Field tomorrow night.

MATCH PLAY STARTS IN MASS. OPEN TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

Manchester-by-the-Sea, July 12—Minus the presence of the defending champion and the runner-up in last year's championship at Charles River, 32 of the state's leading amateur golfers tee off this morning at the Essex Country Club in the first round of match play of the tournament for the 1928 championship.

Eddie Lowery of Norfolk and Bill Whitcomb of Charles River, the finalists in last year's championship, were eliminated from the current tournament yesterday in the 36-hole qualifying round, which resulted in the unprecedented occurrence of seeing the second place winner in the medal play being disqualified on a technicality.

The cruel blow which knocked Joe Schneider of Salem out of the tournament was due to his honesty in reporting to the officials an error in his score, which, had it gone uncorrected, would have locked him in a tie for the medal at 147 strokes with Joe Norton, Jr., of Woodland.

Lowery finished in a tie with eight others for the last two places in the draw. He came to the 36th hole needing a par four to qualify, but he played his shots to the green badly and then, in the play-off, had the misfortune to mishit his drive and so he passed out of the fight without having had the opportunity of raising a mashie in defense of the title he won so unexpectedly last year.

Two of the best matches of the first round ought to be those which bring Emery Stratton of Rose Burn and Harold Kaler of Woodland together in the second quarter and Joe Lynch of Albemarle and Ed Merritt of Salem in the bottom quarter.

If the advance speculation keeps the dope true to form the semifinal round will see Fred Wright playing against Stratton and Fred Buffington opposing Bill McPhail.

This is the first tournament in recent years which has seen Wright and McPhail in opposite halves of the draw. Undeniably they are the class of their respective sections of the draw at match play and the prospects are for a great final round match between the two rivals on Saturday afternoon.

The full lineup of the match play follows:

Wright vs. Whiteside, Lassell vs. Mansell, Carpenter vs. Coolidge, Brown vs. Forrest, Stratton vs. Kaler, Merwin vs. Stuart, McCarthy vs. Ouimet, Jorgenson vs. Crosby, Buffinton vs. Taber, Grimball vs. Blaney, Barnum vs. Sears, Nies vs. Norton, Lynch vs. Merritt, Murphy vs. Ward, Hersey vs. Fischer, Howard vs. McPhail.

Berg Fights Waters for Shot at Mandell

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—A match that eventually will lead to a shot at Champion Jimmy Mandell's lightweight boxing crown is the prize for the winner of the 10 round bout between Jackie Berg, English lightweight, and Mike Waters of California tonight in one of the two headline bouts.

The winner will be sent against Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., July 26 and the winner on that occasion will be matched by Promoter Jim Mullen with the champion.

A cat needs a home. Have you a garage for rent? Tell about it and give location in the Want Ad. Dept. That's the way to fill it.

Danny MacFayden to Be Honored Tonight

Danny MacFayden of Somerville, one of the aces of Bill Carrigan's Red Sox hurling corps, will be honored by the Somerville Broadway Theater management tonight. MacFayden will be presented a huge loving cup by Mayor Leon M. Connell of Somerville, following the reception at which the entire Red Sox team is expected to be present.

MacFayden is one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Somerville High. For four successive years MacFayden's pitching was the chief reason of the team's success in the Suburban League. Each season the team won the league championship.

GENERAL PIERCE SAYS WIGHTMAN IS RIGHT

New York, July 12—Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the national collegiate athletic association, came into the Olympic eligibility fracas by taking the part of George W. Wightman, who resigned from the Olympic committee as a result of the fight concerning Paddock's amateur standing.

WEST MEDFORD PLAYS COLLEGIANS TONIGHT

The West Medford A. A. baseball team will clash with the Collegians tonight on the Playstead Park diamond, West Medford.

The contest is scheduled to start at 6.15 o'clock.

Won't the S. P. C. A. Kindly Take Action on This?

Chicago, July 12 (INS)—Gabe Kaufman, Kansas City boxing promoter, announced here today that he had matched Dave Shade, prominent middleweight contender, and Paul Berlenbach, former world's light heavyweight champion.

They will box in Muehlebach Field, Kansas City, on July 27, Kaufman said. The bout is scheduled at 10 rounds.

WEARY TRIBE STRUGGLING FOR WIN

Chicago, July 12—Rogers Hornsby's Braves play the Cubs today in the third game of the present four-day series. The weary Warriors are desperately trying for a win to break their losing streak.

In yesterday's game the usually faultless Mr. Hornsby was the main cause of the downfall of the team, as he muffed one which allowed a score by the home team. Little Doc Farrell dropped one also, making a pair of misplays for the keystone combination.

Art Delaney pitched one of his best games of the season but those unfortunate muffs prevented him from annexing a win. Though the pitching of Blake, Chicago hurler, was great, and even the slugging Braves manager went without a safe blow.

The Braves are surely a hard luck club. They haven't been getting any pitching to speak of lately, and when one of their men did toss them up well for a game, the team made errors and failed to show much if any, of the ordinary scoring punch.

Olympic Coach Plans to Set Style for Athletes

Lawson Robertson, coach of the track and field team, arrived at the boat early and seemed in a very serious mood.

His attire was the latest in sport fashion — white buckskin shoes with tan trimmings, water-green flannel trousers, camel's hair jacket, sky-blue silk shirt, rich purple satin cravat, leghorn straw hat which he carried in his hand.

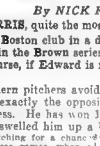
HOWLEY TO SEND GRAY, BOX ACE, AGAINST SOX

By NICK FLATLEY

BIG ED MORRIS, quite the most sensational pitcher unearthed by either Boston club in a decade, will try to give the Red Sox the edge in the Brown series at the Fenway this afternoon. That is, of course, if Edward is right. He has a habit of being that way.

Most modern pitchers avoid work whenever possible. Mister Morris is exactly the opposite, which may account for his startling success. He has won 12 games and lost four to date. But it hasn't swelled him up a bit.

He's always itching for a chance to pitch. In close games, when a pitcher wobbles, Morris hits himself to the bull pen and proceeds to get ready. He does this without orders, forgets that he may have hurled a game the day before.



Nick Flatley

Bill Carrigan's principal trouble with his new wonder is to keep the young man from overworking. Ed pitched in 43 games per year, for three seasons in the Southern League, so feels like a loafer when he has more than a full day off.

Mister Morris harks back to the type of old ballplayer, who thought of nothing but the game. He doesn't look on pitching as just a means to haul down a good salary. He hasn't a hundred and one outside interests. He's a pitcher 24 hours a day, and nothing would please him more than pitching that long. If he had the old zipper going.

If Edward works he will have a lot of competition, for Daniel Howley, the burgomaster of Weymouth wants to get the edge in this series. He has Sam Gray ready and Sam is having one of those years. Taken by and large, he's the best pitcher in the league, for he has won a flock of games for a club that didn't rate at all with times or four other outfits.

Manager Howley has a great deal of respect for Carrigan and the Red Sox.

"No team in the league gives us a tougher fight," chirped Daniel just before he headed for the clubhouse to get into his duds. "We haven't had a soft game with the Sox all year, and they've handed us some tough pastings.

"They are always rarin' to go, and when they start they tear right in. They play good baseball, and hardly ever overlook a bet. Looks like a team that is all ready to become a consistently good ball club.

"We have been shining lately because everybody is hustling. We don't know where we're going, but if we keep pegging away we are likely to wake up in second place some morning. And if we can't win the pennant that will satisfy us pretty well."

BRYAN HARRIS won a ball game and evened up the series but he gave himself and the gang a bad fright before he got over.

Olympic Leader Allows Athletes to Select Foods

HEAD COACH CAREFUL OF DIET

Believes, However, That Athletes Should Choose Own Food

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach, American Olympic Team

Experience has proved to me that you cannot tinker with an athlete's palate nor with his stomach, no matter how logical may seem to be the cause for tinkering, and get good results.

In the years when I was an Olympic athlete myself, and in my training days since, I studied a bit on this diet thing, picked upon his ways and theories and I have come to conclusions rather directly opposite to those of other trainers.

But I've tested out my theories, those, the tests they have proved sound, the results have been universally good and so I'm standing pat on them.

INSISTENT ORDER

One of the most insistent orders of many trainers to an athlete is:

"Don't drink coffee."

I guess that bit of advice has been hammered harder and oftener, upon the heads of athletes than any other bit I has to do with athletic training.

But—my athletes I say:

If you have been in the habit of drinking coffee, go ahead and drink it.

When I was a lot younger and [illegible] drinks or anything [illegible] I studied a bit [illegible]

Tunney Forced to Slow Up in Training for Heeney

CHAMP IS NOW NEAR TO PEAK

Heeney to Box At Night to Get Used to Lights In Title Battle

Speculator, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—Generous doses of milk have kept Gene Tunney from training down too fine for the defense of his title against Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium July 26. Although the champion still has two weeks of work, he is now just short of the peak of condition.

He weighs 197 pounds, and after a hard workout he is five pounds lighter, the exact weight he intends to carry when he faces Heeney.

Tunney restores the five pounds he loses in the ring every day by drinking three pints of milk after each session. He does not intend to let his poundage drop until the eve of the title bout.

He has already reached the point where he must reduce his roadwork. Yesterday he ran only four and one-half miles, and today he probably will do even less.

Starting today, the spectators who daily throng about the ring were asked 50 cents to watch the champion cuff his sparring partners, Harry Old Mays and Billy Videbeck. All the proceeds will be donated to the Little St. James' Catholic Church here. Hitherto the training sessions have been free.

The champion has a convincing explanation of his so-called unorthodox training methods.

Tunney gets plenty of sleep and relaxation and converts the resulting nervous energy by avoiding all worry and eating but two meals daily to aid his digestion. Thus he can expend his strength in the necessary physical effort.

Tern Wins in Sonder Class Racing

Gloucester, July 12—Tern led the sonder class in the mid-week race at Eastern Point.

Twenty-five boats were out in the three classes, and conditions were perfect, a southwester giving the yachts a thresh to the western mark, a reach across the bay, another reach back to the gas buoy and a run to the finish line.

In the sonder class, there was a fight for position behind the Tern, Meezix was nosed by Tid in the run in the harbor, while Steve came home with a big move on and landed fourth ahead of Lady Shamrock.

Kilmer II led the triangles all over the course with Trident a close second. Thurlow was third, going up to the weather mark but was forced to come about by A'ida and Flirt and never caught up again.

Quartet Arrives

Raceland, Ky., July 12—A. M. Jacobus came here from Fairmount Park with Tinker Marvel, Dolores and Busy Miss.

SHOT RIGHT AHEAD

JOE NORTON, representing Charles River C. C., led in the qualifying round of the State amateur. His total was 148. He played sound golf. The match play opens today. The 32 qualifiers will fight it out. The finals are on Saturday.

Perseverance in Golf Makes Perfect

By MIRIAM BURNS HORN
National Golf Champion

PERSEVERANCE and the ability to "carry-on" in the face of all sorts of hazards, bring results in golf the same as they do in any other line of endeavor—be it sports or business.

Witness the remarkable rise in golf of Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, who recently defeated me in the finals for the transmississippi championship.

It was just five years ago that Mrs. Hill, in a tournament, posted a qualifying score of 145 for nine rounds. It encouraged? Not a bit.

She immediately quitted a professional, took lessons and practiced and practiced.

IN the fall of the same year, 1923, Mrs. Hill was shooting her home course in the 90's and succeeded in winning the club championship. And her game has continued to improve ever since.

Within two years of her first tournament experience Mrs. Hill had captured three championships and had reached the third round of the National before being eliminated.

Last year Mrs. Hill and I met in several tournaments. I managed to win, including the transmississippi title—but only after the hardest kind of struggles.

HER remarkable rise in the great game only goes to prove the value of consistent practice—hours each day if possible. So I say to you potential champions—put in some hard licks at practice and stick to it.

First of all, practice to perfect your swing, for there is no shot in golf that can be executed properly unless you have the foundation of a correct swing.

Lady Luck Played Big Part at Olympia

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Champion

IT has been said and truthfully, it seems to me, that the open championship in America's greatest lottery.

A man to win must of a certainty possess a bag full of golf tricks, sound laws of swing, confidence in large measure and, more important than any other asset, the favoring smile of Lady Luck.

I CAN say very truthfully that my hopes of coming through after I had played the first two rounds were not very many. I was seven shots behind the leading Jones, and when that top is ahead of you that many strokes the outlook is generally as bright as it is that day in Honolulu when it does rain.

But I began that decisive round unaware that I had won the favor of Lady Luck. I determined to carry on to the end. Not a one in such a situation as mine could afford to be cast out.

Therefore, before I left that round I could of myself that I must be bold and go for everything, which I did, and at the third was 3-6, one over par.

I had started much earlier that all those others who were thought to have a chance to catch Jones, but I knew what was transpiring about me.

I WAS kept constantly informed of what the other keen competitors were doing by my brother Jimmy and the well-appointed couriers who quite free information bureaus at all big championships.

So I came to know that a miracle was working for me during that last hectic merry-go-round. Jones had gone out in 40 and so had Hagen, both running into a lot of unpleasantness along the rough way you might say.

Followed the news that Macfarlane was not equal to the emergency and that the little sparkplug, Cuici had grown ragged under the strain.

That left only Bill Leach, the Pittsburgher, who suddenly became the darkest of dark horses. Bill, however, the Paul Revere's brought the tidings that Bill had gone too way of the others.

I HAD flunked sorely at the 15th taking a ghastly six, but at the 18th I partly repaid myself for the mishap by reaching the green with two woods that were so perfect that they caused me to tingle with pride.

I putted out for a four and it was that birdie in the crucial moment that was to tie me with Jones at 294.

It was at this 18th hole that Jones exhibited fighting qualities that won my deepest respect. He had had trouble with his drives all through the tournament and the wonder was that he was able to score as low as he did.

HIS tee shot at the home hole puffed in to the rough, a most uncomfortable sort of a place be blind dense shrubbery, and there was nothing left for Bobby to do but get out as best he could. His recovery blow was well executed under the circumstances, but the ball came to rest in a ditch in a most fortuitous position between banks covered with long, tangling grass.

Had his ball stopped but a foot short of where it had Bobby would have been hard pressed to get out and I'm sure he couldn't have got home. The ditch is about 160 yards from the green, and with hardly room for a full swing in the open Bobby had to blast his iron into the ball with vast power. It was a marvellous shot that carried him to the green.

Martha Lee Tells of Making Fudge

By MARTHA LEE

FUDGE is almost sure to be the first candy that an amateur attempts. And yet, how seldom one finds home-made fudge that is really smooth and creamy. All too often it is rough and grainy or is fairly wet over fresh on edge. This, I believe, is because so few housewives follow a tried and true recipe. Then, too, I am afraid they are not as particular about measuring as they should be.

Martha Lee

Today I have for you a recipe for fudge which if you will follow closely, both as to ingredients and method of making, will produce truly professional results.

And, of course, I am going to start off by saying that a candy thermometer is as indispensable in candy making as it is in cooking. Good candy thermometers are not cheap, but they are sure of a definite temperature, thus doing away with guess work.

Select a saucepan large enough for the ingredients used and to allow for boiling and beating. It should have a firm handle, preferably one that will not get heated.

In the saucepan, place 3 c. of granulated sugar, 1 c. of milk, 2 squares of chocolate, and ½ tsp. of salt. Be sure to include the salt to bring out the chocolate flavor and to give zest to the fudge. Place the candy over a slow heat and stir constantly, using a wooden spoon, until the sugar is dissolved.

Then place the candy thermometer in the saucepan and continue boiling gently without stirring until the thermometer registers 234 F. If a candy thermometer is not available drop a little of the fudge into a cup of cold water.

If it forms a soft ball that will hold together and can be handled a bit, remove the candy from the fire, let the fudge in a large bowl of cold water and let it stand undisturbed until there is practically no heat in the fudge mixture itself. Remove the fudge from the cold water and add 2 tbsp. of butter and 1 tsp. of vanilla.

Begin to beat the fudge mixture, gradually working in the butter. Continue beating, raising the spoon forward, lifting up the mass and turning it over and bringing it back until the whole is creamy and thick.

When stiff enough to knead, turn it out at once on a buttered plate and work with your spatula into an oblong or square about an inch thick, let it cool slightly and cut into small pieces.

If you are going to send your fudge away, mold it on the plate, marking it lightly into squares, but do not cut it through.

When it has cooled lift it in one piece from the plate and wrap it tightly in several sheets of heavy waxed paper and pack in a box. In this way the candy will keep creamy and moist.

There are several variations for plain chocolate fudge. For instance, while you are beating the fudge mixture before it is ready to turn on the plate, add 1 c. of finely chopped walnuts, pecans and peanuts. Or you can knead in the nuts on a buttered slab when the fudge is stiff.

Then form it into small balls and roll in finely-chopped walnut meats or finely grated bitter chocolate. Another variation is, after beating the fudge mixture, to add 1 tbsp. of chopped angelica (which is really candied rhubarb) and 1 c. of chopped nut meats.

Roll the fudge lengthwise and cut it in slices. Each piece may then be wrapped in paraffin paper.

If you will follow these directions and measure your ingredients absolutely accurately, using a measuring cup and measuring spoons, you are sure to make delicious chocolate fudge that will please everyone.

Faithfully yours,

MARTHA LEE.

Reed Tells of Cancer Problem

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

YOU should decive some comfort from the fact that all the scientific world is devoting itself to solving the problem of cancer. I happen to know of observations and experiments now in progress which, to me, promise a solution of the heretofore baffling and tragic mystery. The results of these observations and experiments will not be published until they are tested and confirmed by all manner of controls.

That is because science, true science, never is promulgated until, so far as research can do so, it stands on the firm foundation of truth. In the meantime, however, various societies, commissions and committees are collecting and publishing all available data which may help in the final solution.

I find some interesting general observations by one such commission in Yorkshire, England.

In comparison with other diseases, says the report, cancer is more odious, more dangerous and more relentless. It is resisting defeat more stubbornly than any disease which medical science has yet attacked; the fact is, it is actually gaining ground. In the last 20 years the general death rate has fallen 32 per cent, the infant death rate 45 per cent, and the tuberculosis death rate 58 per cent.

The cancer death rate has increased 20 per cent. Most of this increase is absolute.

It surprises many to hear that cancer can be cured, but it is true. Extensive and comparatively safe operations are more often followed by a permanent freedom from recurrence than they were 20 years ago. The public hear much of deaths from operation and of the recurrence of cancer after its removal, but they hear next to nothing from those who are rescued. People who have suffered from cancer seem to regard it as a sort of moral blemish and rarely mention it.

Of the reasons why more people are not rescued, the most important is public ignorance and skepticism. The attitude of a patient who discovers a tumor in the breast is often something like this: 'This may be cancer, and if it is I must have an operation. If I do that I may die, and even if I live the operation may not be successful. I had better not mention this lump to any one.'

The tumor grows every moment of every day, and at last the patient is forced to undergo a rescue operation. She has also produced wasted time by quack "cures." Cancer always starts as a local condition. There is one day in which it is still local, and therefore probably curable; and the very next day a cancer cell has been transmitted to another part of the body and the disease has started to become general.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a married woman, 24 years of age, but do not look more than 17.

I have two boys. The older is five, the baby two. I always read your column in the paper, and am writing in the hope that you will help me with my problem.

I keep my home and children clean, and always see that the bills are paid, and also that I am attractive to my husband, who is 28. We have been married six years.

I cannot get him to keep himself looking young. He always has his pipe in his mouth when we are out walking or in company, and does not shave and bathe as often as I would like, nor does he have his hair cut every week.

Sometimes I object to his table manners. I tell him about this in a nice way, but he gets angry and won't talk to me, so I am coming to you for advice.

KIND-HEARTED WIFE.

I AM afraid you cannot change your husband, my dear. If you try, you will only drive him away from you by your nagging.

Keep yourself and the children very dainty and attractive and teach them good table manners and habits of personal cleanliness. Accept your husband as he is, and try to dwell on his good points in thinking of him.

"Summer in the City"

To the Young Mother the Country for Her Baby
To the Young Girl a Love-Song

DRAWN BY
Nell Brinkley

DAN pipes in the city at smoked stone ledges, at wrought-iron balconies, and fire-escape hedged windows. You wouldn't think that capering god of Summer ventured there, but he does, and THERE his reedy singing hurts the worst.

Dan pipes at many different windows, wherein sits many a different sort of girl. And though each dream that he summons has bloom and blue sky and open country in it, they are quite different—one from the other.

The girl with plenty, with not a heart string tied to any one who needs her, fancy-free, but in love with Love himself, hears only a love song in the eerie fitting of Summer. She sees a sparkling mountain-lake, sprays of peach-blossoms in the sun, a sky like the inside of a robin's egg-blue bowl, velvet grass and a world empty save for herself, the birds and ONE OTHER. The unknown lover. A selfish and youthful dream.

The girl with not so much, and yet a great deal—for she has a baby that she thinks the most wonderful and beautiful baby that has yet been seen in the world—With the strings of HER heart all balled up and entangled with those of the ones who need her; she, too, hears Dan's pipes; and the dream they conjure is bigger, less selfish, more wishfull Meadows, sun, and blooming little trees breaking past over it in sweetness and color; flowers, yes, and azure silk sky, birds and bees, too. But all for a baby who sits in the midst of it with a flower in his fist!

Periscope! American Ensign Falls on a Depth Charge as He Would on a Football

By JOHN KNOX
CHAPTER II

AT this point of our story we will turn once more to the files in the huge white Navy building in Potomac Park at Washington. I am going to let you read one of them, slightly condensed. It is the story of the yacht Christabel's cruise, written on the day it happened when the action was fresh in the mind of the man who set it down That sort of a story is always more human and vivid than a stranger's effort to write years after a sting of spray and the reek of powder smoke have passed from memory.

From: Commanding Officer.
TO: Commander U. S. Naval Forces in Europe.
SUBJECT: Report of action with enemy submarine.

The Christabel had just obtained a supply of five March 11, Mod. 1, U. S. Navy Depth Charges. Two of these were carried on wooden launching frames on stern; the other three in chocks alongside of the afterdeck. The afternoon of May 21, 1918, this vessel was escorting a slow ship which had dropped astern of the Convoy northbound from La Pallice to Brest.

This vessel, the British ship Dance, was about eight miles behind the regular convoy and making about 7½ knots, Christabel six maximum on her port bow. The sea was smooth, the weather clear, no wind. The last ships of regular convoy were in sight occasionally from masthead and bridge.

Passing offshore of Ile d'Yeu, the Grand Phare bearing 35 degrees true, about two miles distant, being Lat. 46 30 N., Long. 2 24 30 W., a well-defined oil slick was sighted at 4 20 p. m., on port bow of convoy and this vessel cruised at full speed around same but saw nothing definite. She turned to escort Dance.

At 4 42 p. m., a periscope and its wake were sighted at starboard beam about 200 yards distant. This periscope was seen almost simultaneously by the executive officer, Ensign Daniel A. J. Sullivan, U. S. N. R. F., and four men all in different positions on deck.

The wake alone was seen by the chief engineer and many members of the crew. Immediately gave the alarm, at time making all possible speed to overhaul Dance. Christabel then on port quarter about 800 yards distant.

Turned immediately into wake, periscope disappearing as submarine dove. At 5.56 p. m. dropped second depth charge set at 70 feet, functioned in 8 seconds. Depth of water about 22 fathoms. Immediately broadcast "Ahoy" giving position and reported same. Position in Lat. 47-30 N., Long. 5-44 W.

The first charge dropped in this attack functioned as usual with depth charges. No result obtained The second charge functioned and a second it seemed after the mushroom of water had started to rise there was a most violent third explosion which threw up between stern of Christabel and the water column raised by the second charge an enormous amount of water and debris.

The shock of this was quite independent of the usual secondary shock felt when the force of an exploding charge reaches the surface. The third explosion shook the Christabel violently and was distinctly felt and commented on by all on board, especially by the Commanding Officer aloft and the Executive Officer and men who were aft handling the charges as being entirely independent from and more violent than the explosion of the charge.

It also sent up about three times the amount of water raised by the 300-lb. charge when detonated at this depth. The men engaged in carrying the two remaining charges to position were bowled over by the explosion.

The Christabel turned immediately and cruised through the slicks of chlorees and of the explosion.

That caused by the first charge covered an area of 150 feet diameter and was covered with the usual brownish residue which follows to surface from exploded charges.

The area above the second charge and the subsequent explosion were adjacent circles, the first having the reddish brown dust of the charge, the second was covered with a quantity of heavy black oil and completely splintered pieces of wood. Very large air bubbles continued to rise to the surface in this area.

A bucket of water was lifted up from the oil covered area but of it was poured on deck and the oil carefully examined. To executive officer, Ensign Sullivan, personally made the examination. This officer had seven years experience with the Standard Oil Company in compounding testing and refining oils and was a former assistant to Conradsen, the Standard Oil Company chemist.

He pronounced the oil obtained from the slick as being undoubtedly a heavy crude oil. Two splintered pieces of wood were brought in and turned over to the Flag Office.

The surface of the sea for about one mile around the spot was soon covered with dead fish in a quantity ten times that usually brought up.

After cruising for about twenty minutes in the vicinity of the attack, the commanding officer, satisfied that the work at hand was accomplished, decided to rejoin convoy and this vessel having been detailed for patrol duty in the Iroise, upon its return, the two remaining charges were not expended.

Set course to rejoin convoy which was now faster than regular convoy.

The vow of silence which binds the navy to hide its stories of courage and initiative made little of that of those minutes that mark the bridge between life and death, between time and eternity. Sullivan yanked his disordered uniform into something like approaching naval smartness and turned prosaically from hero to oil chemist once more.

When the official report of the Christabel is silent on this episode there is another record in the files of the navy.

Sullivan, Daniel A. J., Ensign U. S. N. R. F.—For extraordinary heroism as an officer of the U. S. S. Christabel in conflict with an enemy submarine on May 21, 1918, when as a result of the explosion of a depth bomb dropped near the submarine, the Christabel was so badly shaken that a number of depth charges which had been set for firing were thrown about the deck and these were imminent danger that they would explode.

Ensign Sullivan immediately fell on the bombs and succeeded in securing them, thus saving the ship from disaster, which would eventually have involved great loss of life.

Two days later the Spanish Coast Guards at Santander saw an oddlooking vessel working slowly into harbor. At last the stranger entered the harbor and the port authorities boarded her, to find that she was a German "Unterseeboot" U-54. The deck planking showed great gaps, one periscope was a dangling wreck, the plates of her conning tower were dented and bent, water flowed through great gaps in her outer hull.

The American consul stood among the spectators as the battered German warped to a dock and smiled. He listened to the conversation of the Coast Guardsmen for a few minutes and then sought the telegraph office. A few days later the following cable was received at the Naval Intelligence Division at Washington: June 4, 1918.

From—Sims, London.
To—Navintel.
5917. Following from U. S. Naval Attache, Madrid: "The consul at Santander reports that the German submarine U-54, 800 tons and 30 men, arrived here on Friday at 5 p. m. She had machinery trouble and required assistance. She was drydocked and interned, subject to Madrid approval. At 7.30 p. m. May 31, U. S. Christabel attacked the submarine with depth charges in Lat. 47-10, N. Long. 5-44 W., and the submarine being seriously damaged ceased to operate. The belief that this submarine was the U. C-56 which arrived at Santander, is confirmed by admiralty. 17024" 09204.

bridesmaids," Lily laughed. "I suppose I'd better do it pretty soon The wedding's only five weeks off."

Five weeks! Only a little more than a month! And then she would be Mrs. Staley Drummond, with a town house and a country house and an automobile of her own and a chauffeur to drive it — a chauffeur—

For a second Pat France's face flashed out of her memory. The dark hair, the quick blue eyes, the fine nose and mouth.

Then she put him out of her mind just as swiftly, as she and Sue went on talking over the wedding.

"I think we'll go to Paris for our honeymoon," she told Sue, slipping the last of her bitter black coffee. "And then when we come back we can give a lot of parties. That's all I ask of Life, Sue. A good time, and a big house and lots of money so that I can give my friends a good time always."

Sue let out that irritating little giggle of hers that could mean so many sarcastic things. "You want a few clothes and diamonds and automobiles thrown in, don't you, Pinky?" she inquired, gaily, and then her dark, vivid face became grave. "It can all be yours, Lily," she said. MRS. CORDLE'S DAUGHTER LIKE A DIFFERENT GIRL

Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

DAUGHTER OF MRS. G. H. CORDLE
533 Hazel St., Macon, Georgia

Macon, Ga.—"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel much relieved and I am giving it to my daughter, too. At twelve years of age she was so pale that even her lips had no color. She couldn't hold out to do any work to amount to anything. I gave her the Vegetable Compound and now at 13 years of age she is like a different girl. We are willing for you to use these facts for a testimonial as we cannot praise the Vegetable Compound too much. We will continue to take it and tell of its wonderful value."—Mrs. G. H. Cordle, 533 Hazel Street, Macon, Georgia.

Will Answer Letters

"I am a young mother, eighteen years of age. From early girlhood I suffered terribly because of a run-down condition. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see if it would help me, as she was worried. I did, and now I feel fine. After suffering for five years like I did and then taking nothing but the Vegetable Compound, you may be sure I am recommending it to others. I am willing for you to use anything I say as a testimonial and I will answer letters from any woman wanting to know about the medicine"—Mrs. Dewey Moore, 827 Broderick St., Columbus, Ohio.

The Great Power of Thought

By LUCY LOWELL.

IN all the changes the years have brought about in the lives, sentiments, ideals, governments, effort and general affairs of men, there is no change so radical as that which has to do with the idea of power.

Once it was physical force which ruled. Drawn as itself upon a throne and roared satisfaction with itself. A reign of terror, for its strength and fear; fear of oppression, devastation, death. And this it backed up with ammunition as symbolized by the pomp and pageantry of ermine and purple.

"Three things hold mighty sway with men.

The Sword, the Sceptre
and the Pen:
Who can the least of these
command
In the first ranks of fame
shall stand."

First the sword—the terror. But the illusion of might which hung about the sword has been destroyed. Wars may rage, but battles are fought far behind the lines. Not brawn, but brain wins and that with ideas—not blade nor bullet.

The sceptre has been brought low. Humanity no longer cringes before the emblem of authority, for the force behind it was dispelled when humanity learned to think. The sceptre indicated temporal power, all too shaky at best, as all material things are shaky.

Only thought is spiritual and eternal. And thought is symbolized by the last of the three things guaranteed to confer fame and place—the pen. Civilization is catching on to that now.

However the sword and sceptre served their purpose in the infancy of the race quite as the teething-ring and the alphabet serve their own purposes in the first years of the human. When he becomes a man he puts away childish things, and when nations grow up they put away violence and Kings.

Thought is power; mind governs life.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous
by Ruth Belmain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is dangerous in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or pulling on cardboard cuffs, and constantly bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act first, little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system genuine, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

THE BIDDING

South, with minimum strength for a four-card suit bid, bids one Heart. West, with a two-suiter, calls his Major suit first. North supporting Hearts and East and South passing, West bids his second suit. North gives his second Heart assist. East has a bordering assist for his partner's Spades, after his partner's showing of a two-suiter, but passes because of the improbability of his being able to make the King of Hearts in view of South's original bid of the suit.

THE PLAY

Trick 1. Declarer sees that he must lose three Club tricks and that game therefore depends upon his ability to successfully finesse both Diamonds and trumps. He determines to try the Diamond finesse first and if that succeed to cross-ruff the hand, leaving the finesse of trumps for later play. This plan of play gives him game.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

AN interesting man is one in whose company you can spend a whole evening without once thinking of turning on the radio.

The greatest adventure in a man's life is the discovery of the work for which he was intended—the greatest adventure in a woman's is the discovery of the man for whom she was intended.

No, Gloria, the secret of success in marriage is not mutual independence, but perfect TEAMWORK.

Telling a man that a girl would make him a nice, sensible wife is about as effective these days as trying to arouse his appetite for spinach by telling him that it is good for him.

Before marriage, when a girl guesses a man's thoughts he is astonished at her intuition; after marriage, when she keeps on guessing them, he is annoyed at her "hallucination."

* * *

As charity covereth a multitude of sins, so a good disposition in a husband throws a softening glamor over a lot of bad habits.

When a woman finds out that her husband has gotten his stenographer to sew the buttons on his coat, she is so torn between contrition and suspicion that she doesn't know whether to rush out and buy a package of needles or to see a lawyer.

Never lie awake worrying about the woman a man once loved. Keep your eye on all the women he has not YET loved.

* * *

Somehow a man can't help liking a woman who openly admires him; it puts them right on the same wire, and starts them off with a mutual enthusiasm about which they will never quarrel.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is actually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

DIABETIC DIETS

USE EKSIP

Everyone knows that sugar is absolutely necessary for the body to function normally. To deprive the tissues of this important source of nourishment undermines the health, weakens the system, and makes a person open to the attacks of all sorts of disease, because of the inability of the organs to fight off disease germs. Then complications develop which are usually more dangerous and cause more fatalities than the diabetes itself. A booklet telling how to avoid drastic diets and eat the food needed will be sent FREE OF CHARGE to any sufferer of diabetes. Write Dr. RICHARTZ, Dept. 232, 230 W. 42nd St., N. Y.

CAPT. HARRY DONCASTER made not the uncommon mistake of confounding capital with income; and his inheritance had refused at last to be made the sport of an unscrupulous cheque book. Then he began to borrow, which was crisis the second in his career. He took to borrowing in a direct manner, and came to crisis the second, as I have said. And to this gloomy boundary, I regret to say, Harry Doncaster had arrived at the period in question, although—

'Big Ten' Group Members Tell Their Expectations

By B. C. FORBES

New York, July 12—Everyone owning stocks will be interested in this. It comes from one of the "Big Ten," as the most powerful group of industrial leaders has been called.

It reveals clearly and forcefully that these wealthy operators are today more bullish than they were before the break came.

B. C. Forbes

The statements have been inspired by the belief that my own attitude toward speculation has not been ultra-optimistic, to say the least. "I cannot see why stocks should not bullish," says this member of the "Big Ten," because they are very bright.

A matter of fact, this is the first time in a long time that the haze has been lifted and we have clear atmosphere."

Please understand that the following statements represent his attitude and expectations, not mine. Some of the quotations he sees comfor this, that and the next stock strike me as overenthusiastic. However, coming from the source they do, these observations will have widespread interest.

"General Motors easily is good for forty points from the 1929 total it has sell at $3dr; in fact, with the coming presidential election, either before or directly after the election, you will witness a real boom in the stock market. You will see that the good stocks mocking new highs.

"All of the good news as far as stocks are concerned is yet to come. Most of this good news will be given out during July and August. This will make a good market. What I mean by good news? For instance, was the other day Anaconda Copper was put on a 4 per cent basis Montgomery-Ward will have a stock dividend, which makes this stock good for fifteen or twenty points, and Bupmobile, in addition to the regular cash dividend, will pay an extra cash dividend and a small stock dividend.

"Cast Iron Pipe will be split up and the good news increased, which will make the split up of the stock equivalent to $150 to $400 per share, whereas it is now selling around the $250 per share.

"General Motor is likewise will have a split-up in August.

"Richfield Oil, one of the biggest producers and distributors in California, has a wonderful future. It is good for 65 more.

"It wouldn't be surprising if the Giannini stocks had a very substantial recovery from their recent low levels. It is understood that a number of wealthy men have been buying these stocks instead of the poor little fellows who owned so much of the stock before the collapse came.

"You gave in your column a 'tip' on the stock market, which was to look at the management and board of directors of a company before buying its shares.

"Well, take a look at Radio Corp. of America—the marvelous possibilities of this company; the amalgamations bound to take place; the radio business with Europe. It would pay to be all reading of this stock within a period of five years will be known as the 'golden' era to buy on margin, but it is one that would pay to buy outright and put away.

"There can be no doubt as to Hoover's election. I personally feel, and think you do likewise, that he was aware a favorite of Wall Street, and I am sure Mellon would not have delivered him the votes he did if he was not a friend of Wall Street choice.

"General business for the last six months of this year will undoubtedly exceed the first six months. Money will be very cheap—a great deal cheaper than it was the first six months.

"Finance has gone on a gold basis and certainly conditions in Europe are better now than at any period since the war. Mr. Durant on his recent trip found that nearly everyone is playing the market over there just the same as they are here, which of course shows they are prospering. The only danger to the United States seems to be the fact that we were prospering when the rest of the world was suffering. I cannot help but see a bright future with the whole world prospering."

* * *

Let me repeat that the opinions and the quotations here given are not mine, but come direct from the leader of the powerful group that has led the bull market. Use your own judgment—not his or mine. Don't forget that Forsyth's increase in the Chicago Reserve Bank rate is 5 per cent.

OLD HOME WEEK IS HELPFUL TO NEW ENGLAND

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Old Home Week officially comes next month, but the summer season of different interests is unofficially "Old Home Week" for many former residents of New England. I believe the Old Home Week idea was started and launched during the term Batchelder was governor of New Hampshire and head of the National Grange, reported to be the secret society with the largest membership in these Northeastern States.

With the summer tourist trade growing by leaps and bounds, Old Home Week comes at a time which is, to say the least, opportune. How many people who leave New England forget the "old home"? There are thousands, however, who do not forget. Their annual homeward pilgrimage is like that to some beloved shrine. President Charles C. Small of American Ice Co., of which Boston Ice is a smart subsidiary under President Roland Hoskins, is one of those who "do not forget." Next week will see President Small back at his home in Kennebunkport, Me., and at Forehand, he tells us . . .

They did not play golf a great deal in New England in the old days. President Small was a boy, but just look at the crowded links today. President Small plans to play golf while in Maine. There is hardly a big business executive who does not play golf now and then as a health preserver.

Recently I visited the different plants of the Boston Ice Co. and was amazed by the efficiency of machinery, workmen and executives. Producing ice on 24 hours a day, if needed, and production is gauged to meet demand.

MOLLER STORES HAVE OUTING

The 250 employes of Moller's three stores in Cambridge, Worcester and Lowell are still talking about the wonderful time they had at their annual outing in Hull.

Because of the excessive heat, a majority of the employes donned bathing suits as soon as they arrived at the beach and remained in them for hours. Everything in the way of sporting events was informal as that was the desire of all.

After getting cooled off, a baseball nine was rounded up from employes of the store and another from those who work at the warehouse. The latter won, 8 to 5, in a well-contested game. Those who formed the winning team were Al Walsh, W. Walsh, Stone, Warren, Ferola, Brannigan, Connolly, McNally and Vicory. The losers were: Robart, Reddy, Teydot, Aikens, Bison, Hayes, Morse, Burke and Vaughan.

An old-fashioned clambake followed the sporting events and after the clambake came dancing.

'GOOD GIRL" SERIAL BEGINS NEXT MONDAY

Nancy was shocked at the easy familiarity of life in the modern dressing room, but many things shocked Nancy, who, inexperienced, blonde, and attractive, was launched in the big city from the quiet country.

She plunged into the life of studio parties, midnight rides and the privacy of roadhouses.

Can a girl have too much of the feminine appeal, too much of "IT"? Read "Good Girl," Roy L. Foley's latest serial, beginning next Monday in the Boston Evening American.

CONSIDINE GETS RICHMOND FOR FILM SHOW

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, July 11—Harry L. Richmond, song and dance artist, actor and musical comedy favorite, is going to make a picture for United Artists. There, have you digested that piece of news? Harry Richmond whose night club in New York makes him in a way the male Texas Guinan of the Great White Way, has finally succumbed to talkies.

This is the way it happened. John Considine, Jr., in search of talent for United Artists' sound device, decided that Harry Richmond was just the boy. Harry accepted and now John Considine is leaving for New York to listen to some new songs and to talk over an original story that Richmond has written for himself.

We shall soon have all of Broadway out here in Hollywood. That will probably mean we will have more and more legitimate theaters.

I ALWAYS suspected that some day Famous Players-Lasky would resurrect "The Admirable Crichton" and have it made with due consideration for the author, Sir James Barrie. Cecil B. Mille, some years ago when the movies were indeed in their infancy, made a picture he called, "Male and Female," with Gloria Swanson and Thomas Meighan.

The picture was pretentious, a super special I might say, but it bore so little resemblance to "The Admirable Crichton" that people wondered why the Barrie story was even given credit on the screen.

When the Famous makes the picture now, Florence Vidor and Richard Dix will have the leading roles and there is talk of Harry D'Arrast directing. But Harry is so constantly in demand that he is booked in advance for all his pictures.

ERNEST TORRENCE unconsciously pays a very fine tribute to Louis B. Mayer and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, by attending their office of a contract. When Torrence, who is one of the fine actors on the screen, decided to desert Metro a year ago he said it was because he felt he must pick and choose his own parts. Since that time he has made many Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures; apparently they are the kind he likes, for he has signed a long term contract and has given up his life of free-lancing.

I REMEMBER well when Chautauqua first came into vogue even so much as to present a motion picture. I remember because 12 years ago I was booked with such a stunt speech in conjunction with some film I had collected.

I had a promise to show nothing that was not strictly educational and to answer that I'm no old I so much as mention that would be offensive to quiet audiences.

Now, motion pictures along with symphony concerts, musical numbers and lectures are a part of the program. Ann Christy, the pretty little girl who played "Speedy" opposite Harold Lloyd, will appear at Winona lake, July 17. And I wonder if she will make her journey by airplane, which much to delight the Winona lake residents.

Will Rogers is also booked at Winona lake. Speaking at Chautauquas or anywhere else is nothing new for Will, who scatters rope-throwing, gum-chewing, acting, writing and speaking through his life with facility.

HOLLYWOOD'S sun is not always to be relied upon. Ask Ruth Charterton what I mean. Ruth is now lying in bed with a mask over her face trying to get well from a second degree sunburn and trying to get her swollen lips and face back in shape to play in "Bird Jannings' picture next Monday. You wouldn't believe that the sun in California sun that has done so much to heal people could be so cruel, now could you?

YOU could never really think of Leslie Fenton without visualizing him as the soldier boy in "What Price Glory." His playing of a young man found in the throes of soul-searing. Now Leslie has another big part in "The Play's the Thing," at Universal City. They tell me it's to be made on a lavish scale with Conrad Veidt in the leading role.

NOT so many years ago but that we all remember, Richard Carle was a musical comedy favorite. Now Carle is out in Hollywood, devoting his talents to the silent drama. He has signed to play a part in Colleen Moore's picture, "Orchids and Ermine." This is not to be a sound picture, or I suppose we should say have Carle doing his stuff in the talkies.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Gloria Swanson; Constance Talmadge and Clarire Windsor luncheoning at the Ambassador. D. W. Griffith sitting at a nearby table. A number of Los Angeles leading citizens dining in an early hour to breakfast with Mayor Walker at the Breakfast Club. Samuel Goldwyn walking briskly up the avenue for morning exercise. Irene Purcell hurrying to the Fox Studio to keep a rendezvous with the camera. Marion Davies accommodating a new traffic rule in bridge. Lila Lee gazing into a shop window on Hollywood boulevard doing the same thing. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

INSURANCE EMPLOYES ON OUTING AT HULL

The annual outing of the Travelers Insurance Co., was held this afternoon at the Griffin Inn grounds, Pemberton. Guests included Henry Prentiss of Lowell, B. E. Cass of New Bedford, William J. Davidson of Taunton and J. Roy Bennett of the F. C. Church Agency.

PENNSYLVANIA PUBLIC SERVICE INFORMATION COMMITTEE

930 CITY CENTRE BUILDING, PHILADELPHIA, PENNA.

Important and Confidential!

TO EXECUTIVES OF PENNSYLVANIA PUBLIC UTILITIES:

You are urgently requested to delegate to someone in your organization the following task, which is of exceeding importance and which will redound to the benefit of every public utility in the State.

To read carefully the newspapers in your area and note if any material published in the attached News Bulletin appears in those newspapers.

To clip any such material appearing in the newspapers and forward same to the Executive Committee, Public Service Information Committee, 930 City Center Building, Philadelphia, with name of newspaper on each clipping.

To report to the Committee Director the names of newspapers read which do not quote items from the News Bulletin.

To ascertain whether newspaper editors not utilizing News Bulletin items ever receive or see the News Bulletin, forward to the Committee Director the names of editors who do not receive or see the Bulletin.

To ascertain whether the editor of your house organ, in the event your company publishes one, receives a copy of the News Bulletin.

Your are urged to notify the Committee Director whether or not you can comply with our request.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

P. H. GADSDEN, Chairman W. C. HAWLEY P. C. STAPLES
W. C. DUNBAR W. H. JOHNSON C. L. S. TINGLEY

THIS exhibit, from the official records of the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the Power Trust and the Power Lobby, illustrates how the utility interests handle newspapers in Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Public Service Information Committee, the State lobby and propaganda organization, sent this "important and confidential" memorandum addressed "To Executives of Pennsylvania Public Utilities." Each executive was urged to delegate to some one in his organization certain important tasks, among them the following:

"To read carefully the newspapers in your area and note if any material published in the attached News Bulletin appears in those newspapers.

"To report to the Committee Director the names of newspapers read which do not quote items from the News Bulletin."

The Committee Director, at the time of this memorandum, was Maj. J. S. S. Richardson, now promoted to be publicity director of the national power lobby, the Joint Committee of National Utility Associations, where he is chief disbursers of the $400,000 slush fund being used to beat Boulder Dam.

At the head of the committee sending out the above notice was Philip H. Gadsen, now chairman of the executive committee of Richardson's Joint Committee. Another signature, along with Gadsen's was that of W. H. Johnson, president of the Philadelphia Electric Company. On May 3, he testified that he had drawn out $20,223 of the Pennsylvania lobby's money to spend "influencing" the legislature in Harrisburg, but he could not recall what he had done with a dollar of it, though the last $675 was handed out in cash during the last days of February of this year.

CHILDREN HEAR, SEE TALKING MOVIES

Many children from Daly Industrial School, Dorchester, and the Industrial School for Crippled Children, were entertained today by the Boston Evening American at a trip to Franconia and Washington Street • Olympia Theaters.

All these boys and girls saw and heard "talkies" for the first time when they attended performances of Warner Brothers' latest Vitaphone screen version of the dramatic success, "Lion and the Mouse." These new "talking movies" made a great hit with the children. They thought them fine.

Such favorites as Lionel Barrymore, Alec Francis, May McAvoy and William Collier, Jr., were both seen and heard in this picture.

The children also saw and heard Mussolini, the Italian leader, who seemed as lifelike that he appeared to be on the stage. The Vatican choir, likewise, was seen and heard, as well as two interesting sketches. It was a big day for the youngsters. Two hundred children from Catholic Charitable Bureau will attend the same show tomorrow at the Washington Street Olyphia, as guests of the Boston Evening American, being the last group from many institutions to be entertained this week by this newspaper.

CREATED STAGE ROLE OF 'LORD FAUNTLEROY'

New York, July 12 (AP)—Thomas Henry Russell, who achieved fame on the stage when he originated the role of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," died of cirrhosis of the liver at Bellevue Hospital.

He was a brother of Annie Russell, the actress, and had played with Bernhardt, Ibsen, Modjeska and Nazimova, but left the theater to become a dealer in art. His widow, Mrs. Susan Powell Russell, and two sisters, Annie Russell and Mrs. John J. Carty, wife of the vice-president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, survive.

Music Hall Star a Suicide

Paris, July 13 (AP)—Jenny Golder, one of the most popular stars in European music halls, shot herself through the heart and died instantly. Miss Golder was 32 years old and of Australian nationality.

'POWER TRUST' FLAYED AT 'DRY' CONVENTION

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—While the prohibitionists in convention here took no action toward naming a candidate for President, the sentiment of leaders of both the party probably would endorse the candidacy of Herbert Hoover, either by direct action or by failure to nominate at all, from the leading members of the party, free to vote for the Republican nominee.

On the liquor question, the prohibitionists' platform makers stressed their opposition to the methods of the Anti-Saloon League, as manifesting a "false political philosophy." Other planks in the platform which was practically ready for adoption today included a denunciation of the "power trust." The McNary-Haugen and Boulder Dam bills were opposed.

The prohibition party platform as drafted, also urged reform in judicial procedure, uniform marriage and divorce laws, entrance of the United States into the world court, and condemned election laws of several states.

100 BUSINESS AGENTS AT BRANT ROCK OUTING

More than 100 business agents of unions affiliated with the United Building Trades Council will participate in the third annual outing of the group today. The outing will be held at Fieldston, Brant Rock, with a program of field and water sports and a chicken dinner. The party will assemble at the council's headquarters, 142 Berkeley st., at 8 o'clock this morning and will motor to the shore, where the dinner will be served for them on arrival. The affair will be under the direction of President John Carroll, Business Agent E. E. Graves and Secretary E. A. Johnson.

POLICE SENT TO GUARD BREMEN FLIERS' PLANE

Quebec, Que., July 12 (AP)—A detail of Quebec Provincial police has been ordered to Greenly Island to protect the transatlantic plane Bremen from souvenir hunters, who already have stripped the craft of several of its parts.

WOOLWICH ARSENAL THREATENED BY FIRE

London, July 13 (AP)—Fire today threatened a large stock of military stores in Woolwich arsenal, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the world. Fire engines from practically all parts of London rushed to the scene and the fire brigade of the garrison was turned out to help them.

After an hour's hard work the flames were prevented from spreading from the 200-foot storage shed to a huge stock of military stores nearby.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

In Cases of Drowning

DON'T Wait for a "Breathing Machine," but IMMEDIATELY Apply the Schaefer Method

His Honor the Mayor of Worcester takes one of the officials of the police department of that city over the mayoral knee and administers a spanking because the officer is said to have refused the use of the departmental pulmotor to the neighboring town of North Grafton.

A seven-year-old Polish boy from Worcester, attending a picnic at the North Grafton end of Lake Quinsigamond, jumped with a companion from a diving-board and did not come up again. When his body was found Worcester was asked for the pulmotor.

Worcester's emergency ambulance, it appears, was "out on a call," with another call on the waiting list. A pulmotor finally was obtained from Milford.

Mayor O'Hara, who believes in neighborliness, writes to Chief of Police Foley that "while this drowning did not occur in Worcester it took place not far from it.

"When there is a possibility of saving a human life I do not want the Police Department to stand too much upon ceremony or discuss the question of jurisdiction too much. We must not be hesitant in aiding our neighbors in time of stress or trouble."

These are proper sentiments, revealing the proper spirit, but if the medical authorities who write for the newspapers are as well informed as they are believed to be the fault was not the police lieutenant's so much as that of the town officials.

Is it possible that in North Grafton they are unacquainted with the Schaefer prone-pressure method of artificial respiration?

"Breathing machines" of one kind and another have been condemned, as life-saving apparatus, by the United States Public Health Service, the association of fire and police surgeons and other bodies.

Mechanical devices of this character, we are told, "do not conform to natural breathing." The preferred method calls for manual manipulation of the victim's body—the Schaefer treatment—supplemented by the use of an approved INHALATOR. A considerable number of these inhalators is now in use in fire and police stations, as well as at swimming pools and public playgrounds.

Every boy attending primary or elementary school, in Worcester, North Grafton and elsewhere in New England, should be instructed in the Schaefer prone-pressure method of resuscitation, concerning which those who are curious may obtain further information by applying to the United States Public Health Service, at Washington.

Swordfish

In Season, More Plentiful Than Last Year, and NOT Too Expensive

People who prefer their swordfish fresh from the water rather than not so fresh from the ice-box are in luck this summer, receipts at Boston showing an increase of more than 200 per cent over last year.

Up to date, the fishermen have brought in 1473 swordfish, many of them weighing several hundred pounds. At this time in 1927 the catch had amounted to only 506.

As a natural consequence, the price is down. The men who do the fishing were being paid 21 cents a pound for the larger fish last week and 12 cents for "pups." Prices a year ago were 42 and 20 cents.

Give the man who appreciates broiled swordfish what HE wants and, so far as he is concerned, the Texan may stuff himself on sliced watermelon, and the mid-Westerner on baked ham, till the cows come home.

When He Saw the Head

The Dancing Lady Became Less Pleasing

"The Head of John the Baptist." A Striking Painting by Charles Ricketts, R. A.

This picture of the old Bible story is interesting in itself. A beautiful woman tried in vain to tempt John the Baptist. It was true in those days, as in this, that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." The scorned lady determined to get revenge.

TOTAL OF VALUES IS WHAT COUNTS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EVERY once in awhile we hear a man say, "Business is business," or that he follows "art for art's sake," or that he as a scientist cares only for the truth, not for its practical results, and so on. But the fact is humanity is not put up in water-tight compartments.

Everything you do affects all parts of your nature.

What you do in business reflects on your art, what you do in art colors your business, and what you think in religion has much to do with your scientific conclusions. Mankind is one, one organic whole, and its various departments of activity have merely been listed for convenient reference. They do not exist in reality.

If your religion is ugly and cruel your business will be immoral.

If your business is heartless and vindictive your whole life will show it.

The scientist must pay some attention to the practical bearings of his investigations, for it would be foolish for him to spend his whole life on investigating some perfectly useless matter.

Business must be beautiful. Art in some way must rest upon a business basis.

A man cannot have his whole head submerged in literature, he must have sense enough to market his wares.

The beautiful works of art of past generations had their influence upon believers in religion, and religion is what it is owing to a thousand other causes within itself.

Much recent art shows contempt for any but aesthetic values. Such art is transient, and will give place to a greater art, in which beauty of thought and expression will confer enlarged values.

The total of all values is what counts.

This result can be achieved not by preaching in art nor by making science "practical," but by universal education in values so that artist, business man, or scientist will express himself in synthesis of all values.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

When any calamity has been suffered the first thing to be remembered is, how much has been escaped. —Johnson.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT'S the most necessary virtue in a mother?

My guess is IMAGINATION.

Love, tenderness, patience, honesty, courage, loyalty, tact, unselfishness—all these qualities are essential in a mother and nearly all mothers have them. But a mother might possess all these virtues and still be a failure if she lacked IMAGINATION.

And therein lies tragedy. For so many mothers do lack imagination—lack even the ability to recognize the fact that imagination is needed in family life. Yet it is needed there more than any other place on earth. For there's nothing harder to stand than living close to folk who don't understand you and don't try to. The most loving service becomes a galling gift unless understanding is given with it.

There's Martha Allen, for example. One of the real old-fashioned mothers. Simply lives for her children. Slaves for them day and night. Not foolish about them, either. Always made them toe the mark. But never too severe. Generous, patient. Yet now that the twins are 17 and Eddie 19 it's just one row after another in the Allen house.

"Mother doesn't understand us," the youngsters say defiantly.

"For goodness sakes, what's there to understand about you?" their exasperated mother cries. "Didn't I born you? Haven't I watched you all your lives? And as for these new-fangled ways you are always talking about—gosh! I think I never was a girl myself the way you go on. What if I was born a few years before you were? Human nature doesn't change."

That's where Martha Allen makes her big mistake. Human nature DOES change. Its combinations vary with every character. No two people face life from the same angle. Martha has never realized that. She has done her best for her children but it has always been HER best. She has never stopped to consider that the children might have a vote in determining that best. She has never tried to see life from THEIR angle. And so she has lost her grip on her children not because she lacked love but because she lacked IMAGINATION.

"But isn't a mother the best judge of what her children should do?" you ask. "Would you have her let them do something she thinks is wrong?"

No, indeed. But it's amazing how our ideas of right and wrong will be changed and modified if we'll try to put ourselves in the other fellow's shoes. No mother has a right to indulge in a special, private, personal moral code which is built upon her own particular moral tastes. If you're going to guide other lives you must adjust your code to theirs. Imagination is the great adjuster.

And that goes for all of us as well as mothers.

DON'T ATTEMPT EITHER TO LOVE OR HATE ANOTHER HUMAN UNTIL YOU'VE PUT YOURSELF IN HIS SHOES.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

WHAT a world of mistakes say one of us makes! Good or bad, grim or glad, just a chain of mistakes, till head throbs and heart aches! Yet, in truth, since we know that wherever men go, young or old, meek or bold, with them all this is so; it but helps us to grow. Each mistake we have made makes us quicker to add, makes us kind, makes us blind to the world of mistakes that the other man makes.

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 12—The utter boredom of a so-called smart crowd in New York is a social phenomenon quite unexplainable to the casual onlooker parked behind a palm and filled with an eye-bulging curiosity. Expected gaiety merely crystallizes into a luxurious yawn.

One wonders why these people, rated as those "who belong," go out in public at all. The dispirited manner is especially marked in cases. They enter in the hushed fashion of those who have come to take a last look at the remains. There is not a smile in a train load.

They sit at the tables in such a tight-lipped silence that one longs for what vaudeville terms "a belly laugh." A languid hand extended to some passing acquaintance appears to be the only show of activity. They do not talk. They merely indulge in monosyllabic murmur.

Even the waiters seem to be touched by the melancholy. You would not be greatly surprised if they cried a little in your soup. While this seeming prostration is largely a pose, there is little doubt most of them are affected by the tedium of the squirrel in the revolving cage.

In country boy fashion I have read all my life of "society's dizzy whirl." A closeup reveals it as not even a half turn. It is a view of a crowd of mostly uninteresting people nibbling at expensive food and staring in the detached manner of a stage Ophelia.

Once in a while one of those "How have you been?" gushers prances into the room, but you can see he is a headache. The crowd wants to wallow in its ennui. Their noticeable lack of concession to ordinary manners has long been a topic among the Emily Post alumnae.

Dowagers do not hesitate to hoist an aristocratic bornette rudely to inspect the stranger from Singing Springs. Flin debutantes take a delight in a public hitch of the stocking or a free hand smear of rouge and otherwise showing off for hot pollel.

IT is fair to say New York society class consciousness is in the minority. There is a stratum in every type of humanity that predicates the show-off. But there are members of New York's society the public never sees. And perhaps it is just as well.

INDEED, there is a section of the "400" referred to as "cafe society." They flit from cafe to cafe and night club to night club. These sucre tere members of aristocracy are rarely seen in cafes.

AMONG the extreme upper crust social mingling is limited. There are few intimates outside of the immediate family and their lives are devoted largely to charity. A notable example of a younger matron upholding this social quality is Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is seldom seen in public save at charity events where she is among the patronesses.

ANOTHER bit of gossip from the social realm concerns several debutante church weddings that were delayed from a half hour to an hour the past year as the result of pre-ceremony cocktail parties indulged by ushers, bridesmaids, maids of honor, best men and other attendants. At one a substitute best man had to be rushed into service at the last moment. The real best man having toppled from his auto at the church curb and folded up like an accordion.

CLASS distinction among society debutantes is so pronounced in New York they are in three grades —A, B, C—and are thus listed by society editors.

PERSONAL social activities in grade Z at the moment concern a child engagement on West 48th st., where my prominence always gets me the best stool. And I'm also a card in chop suey joints.

THE bane of a new car owner are those pests who gaze at the purchase and inquire how much it can do on a gallon. They seem doubtful the new car will hold a gallon.

She danced before the king—you see her and him here, after the dance is over.

The king promised her anything, and when she demanded the head of poor John the Baptist, he gave it to her on a platter.

In the lower right-hand corner you see the black slave holding up the head of St. John, victim of a cruel woman and a brutal king.

Now, observe that punishment comes, even here on this earth. Remorse, terror and superstitious fear can punish as thoroughly as the worst hell-fire ever described by Cotton Mather.

The king cringes and shudders on his throne. He loathes the sight of the woman that persuaded him to sacrifice and murder a good man. He fears God's wrath. Well he may.

All his power and wealth, the soothing ostrich feather fan that his slave holds behind him, the woman's promise of new delights; dances hitherto not known, cannot comfort the miserable murderer.

Lightning flashes in the sky, and he fears what is coming.

Let us hope that it turns out to be worse than anything he feared.

And let those that contemplate cruelty, crime or any misdeed look ahead and remember that while you may escape the law YOU CAN'T ESCAPE REMORSE.

The Ideal School

John E. Kirkpatrick, educator, tells the American Federation of Teachers that some day there will be an ideal school with children free to come and go, and there will be no playing hookey.

That school will come, and moving pictures will be part of its educating process. When education is made interesting it will not be necessary to drive children to school. You don't have to drive them to the movies.
